MISSOURI GREETING 'TOUCHES' WILSON

Partisanship Cast Aside in Welcome to President and Wife at St. Louis

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 5.—President and Mrs. Wilson spent a very pleasant day in St. Louis. Partisanship was forgotten in the Mound City and Republicans and Democrats united to bid the Chief Executive and his wife welcome. The city streets were crowded, while the majority of buildings were bedecked with flags and bunting.

"It touches my heart," said the President to the reception committee members, following his arrival at his hotel. Leaving the train at 9:30, the party was driven in automobiles through the principal streets to the Hotel Statler, where headquarters had been established for the day. All along the route the President was cheered. A noticeable feature of the welcome was the enormous number of children, who, armed with flags, were lined along the sides of the streets.

Mrs. Wilson was even a greater attraction than the President. Cheers and shouts of welcome greeted her everywhere that she went.

It was expected the President would take some action in the pending strike in the steel industry before leaving St. Louis.

The telegram from the sub-committee of the American Federation of Labor asking him to intervene to secure recognition of their claims by Judge E. H. Gary, head of the steel corporation, was placed in his hands during the morning.

Just what action the President will take is not yet known. He is expected, however, to urge the workers

STAGE VAMPIRE INJURED, SUES FOR $25,000

Mabel Bunyea, the bewitching vampire of the "See-Saw" company, will be off her job of "vampiring" for some time as a result of a plunge down a flight of stone steps with a fellow thespian. She is at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital suffering with a broken ankle, a broken knee, a fractured shoulder and other injuries. Photograph by White Studio, New York.

As the result of a plunge down twelve stone steps in a Huntington avenue alleyway, Miss Mabel Bunyea, the vampire of "See-Saw," is at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital with a broken ankle, a broken knee, a fractured shoulder and other injuries; J. Epailly of "Breakfast in Bed" is confined to his room with multiple injuries, and suits for $25,000 have been filed against the city of Boston, the estate of S. S. Pierce and the Kittredge estate by Major Thomas L. Walsh.

Miss Bunyea and Mr. Epailly, following a meeting of the Actors' Fidelity Association in Jordan Hall, were on their way to see Miss Adele Morris of the Copley Theatre company.

They turned into the alleyway leading to the stage door of the Copley Theatre, and Miss Bunyea fell. Epailly followed her. Citizens went to their assistance and they were taken to the hospital. Miss Bunyea was so seriously injured that it is expected to be any weeks before she will be able to return to the stage.

PERSHING JOINS IN DRILL WITH SHIP CREW

Aboard the U. S. S. Leviathan, via wireless to New York, Sept. 5.—Although heavy seas have been encountered, the Leviathan, bearing General John J. Pershing to the United States, is making good time and if the present schedule is maintained will dock in New York Monday at 9 a. m.

General Pershing has remained in his stateroom during most of the trip except for an occasional turn about the deck and the abandon ship drill, which is still maintained despite the fact that there is now no submarine menace.

The Leviathan ran into the worst storm of the season on Wednesday night. Heavy seas battered the huge Leviathan, which, despite her bulk, rolled considerably.

A sixty-foot wave struck her broadside, smashing the boats and flooding one of the cabins.

Kaiser May Be Found Not Guilty, Says Secretary Lansing

That it would have been extremely difficult to convict the Kaiser of violating the "laws of humanity," and that a finding of not-guilty was by no means impossible "if his judges were impartial and not merely instruments of vengeance," were statements made by Secretary of State Robert Lansing at the American Bar Association convention today.

He was discussing the proposed trial of the Kaiser, and to his audience, consisting of nationally-known lawyers, he told for the first time the details of the conference which dealt with this subject, and explained why the American delegates dissented from their European colleagues.

Secretary Lansing referred to the proposed trial as having been "the cause of some very intemperate and ill-considered expressions of opinion." After explaining the personnel of the commission which sat upon the question, the speaker said:

"It was apparent at the very beginning of our sessions that certain members of the commission were determined before everything else to bring the Kaiser to trial for a criminal offence before an international high tribunal of justice to be constituted for the purpose primarily of determining his guilt and imposing upon him a suitable penalty for his crimes.

THREE POSSIBLE CHARGES.

"There were three charges which could be urged against him, namely, that he was responsible for the war, that he was responsible for the violation of the neutrality of Belgium and Luxemburg, and that he was chargeable with flagrant violations of the laws and customs of war perpetrated by the armed forces of Germany.

"The first two charges were the ones which appealed most strongly to public opinion and aroused the bitterest indignation both in Europe and America. From everywhere arose the cry for vengeance. It was under this pressure of popular demand, and

FINISH FIGHT OVER TREATY TO BEGIN IN SENATE WITHIN TEN DAYS

AMENDMENTS WOULD KILL LEAGUE, SAYS HITCHCOCK

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 5.—A week or ten days may elapse before the treaty of Versailles, as amended by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is tossed into the ring of senatorial conflict, Senator Lodge, the committee's chairman, said today.

Lodge will begin at once the preparation of the majority report which he will submit to the Senate with the treaty. The resolution of ratification, embodying four reservations in chief, which Republican Senators in control of the committee adopted, with the assistance of Senator John K. Shields, Democrat, of Tennessee, will accompany the document and the report.

Several days probably will be occupied by Lodge in preparing the report. Lodge also pointed out that the voluminous document will have to be reprinted so that it may include the textual changes made in it. This will also take time.

More time will be consumed by the preparation of a minority report by the administration Senators on the committee. They have asked for three days for this task after Lodge has finished the majority report. By the week after next the finish fight over the treaty is expected, however, to be in full swing in the Senate, with the lines tightly drawn between the administration forces, who are supporting the President's refusal to accept reservations, and the Senators who are equally persistent in declining to vote for the treaty without reservations.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, the administration spokesman in the Senate, declared today that for the Senate to accept the four reservations adopted by a majority vote of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would be to "kill the treaty."

"The four amendments are just as objectionable to us as if they were textual amendments," Hitchcock said. "They strike at the heart of the League of Nations covenant. I am just as confident that they will be defeated as I am that the textual amendments proposed will be defeated."

SHIELDS WITH OPPONENTS.

Republican senators opposed to ratification of the treaty in its present form—including Senators Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, Knox of Pennsylvania, Brandegee of Connecticut, Moses of New Hampshire and Fall of New Mexico—were emphatic today in predicting that the document would never be ratified without reservations. Both sides were busily engaged today in preparing for the coming fight. Conferences of Republican senators on one hand and Democratic senators on the other were scheduled.

A subject holding the attention of the rival leaders was the action of Senator Shields in allying himself with the treaty opponents, with an announcement that he favored reservations.

Shields voted for three of the four reservations adopted by the Foreign Relations Committee, and said he was "sympathetic" with the fourth, that involving Article 10, although he declined to vote for it because he did not approve of its phraseology. Shields is the fifth Democratic senator to come out openly for reservations. The others are Reed of Missouri, Gore of Oklahoma, Thomas of Colorado and Walsh of Massachusetts.

Senators Kenyon of Iowa and Capper of Kansas were among the Progressive Republican Senators to declare today that they would support the resolution of ratification with the four reservations-in-chief incorporated.

Text of Resolution for Ratifying Treaty

Washington, Sept. 5.

The resolution for ratification of the treaty with reservations adopted by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is as follows:

"RESOLVED (two-thirds of the senators present concurring therein), That the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of a Treaty of Peace with Germany, signed by the plenipotentiaries of the United States and Germany, and by the plenipotentiaries of the twenty-seven Allied and Associated Powers, at Versailles, on June 28, 1919, with the following reservations and understandings to be made a part and a condition of such ratification, which ratification is not to take effect or bind the United States until the said following reservations and understandings have been accepted as a part of and a condition of said instrument of ratification by at least three of the four principal Allied and Associated Powers, to wit: Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan:

"1—The United States reserves to itself the unconditional right to withdraw from the League of Nations upon the notice provided in Article 1 of said Treaty of Peace with Germany.

"2—That the United States declines to assume, under the provisions of Article X., or under any other articles, any obligations to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country, or to interfere in controversies between other nations, members of the League or not, or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States in such controversies, or to adopt economic measures for the protection of any other country, whether a member of the League or not, against external aggression, or for the purpose of coercing any other country, or for the purpose of intervention in the internal conflicts or other controversies which may arise in any other country, and no mandate shall be accepted by the United States under Article XXII., Part I., of the Treaty of Peace with Germany, except by action of the Congress of the United States.

"3—The United States reserves to itself exclusively the right to decide what questions are within its domestic jurisdiction, and declares that all domestic and political questions relating to its affairs, including immigration, coastwise traffic, the tariff, commerce, and all other domestic questions, are solely within the jurisdiction of the United States and are not under this treaty submitted in any way either to arbitration or to the consideration of the Council or the Assembly of the League of Nations, or to the decision or recommendation of any other Power.

"4—The United States declines to submit for arbitration or inquiry by the Assembly or the Council of the League of Nations, provided for in said Treaty of Peace, any questions which in the judgment of the United States depend upon or relate to its long established policy, commonly known as the Monroe Doctrine; said doctrine to be wholly outside the jurisdiction of said League of Nations and entirely unaffected by any provision contained in said Treaty of Peace with Germany."

The men have resumed work at the plant of the Greenwood Associates Chair Manufacturing Company after a week's strike, being granted a nine-hour day with pay for ten hours' work.

GOV. BEECKMAN MAKES FLIGHT FROM NEWPORT

Providence, Sept. 5.—Flying from Newport to this city after breakfast in a navy hydroplane is "bully sport," according to Governor Beeckman, who broke all rules of the Navy Department which prohibits passengers from riding in government planes. Admiral Simms is said to have opined that the Governor of Rhode Island should be allowed to transgress the regulations for one day and the trip followed. After the trip the governor said: "It was perfectly wonderful and jolly good sport and I am thinking of buying a flying machine and becoming a regular flyer."

UNIONS OPPOSE FARE ZONES IN NEW BEDFORD

A proposition to divide the city of New Bedford into two fare zones was opposed by union labor leaders at a hearing before the Public Service Commission. It was claimed that the great majority of working people have to cross the city to reach the factories, and double fare would be required of them.

The Union Street Railway Company of New Bedford, which petitioned for the change, explained it was necessary if the five-cent fare is to be retained and also increase revenues.

to remain at their posts until after he returns to Washington and can give his personal attention to the problem.

It was stated that the President at his luncheon speech this afternoon and tonight would elaborate on his declaration of last night that the opponents of the treaty of Versailles either suggest real substitute or stop their opposition.

The President expects that the treaty will speedily be ratified by the Senate. To all of his callers today he declared that he had not the slightest doubt of the final outcome. He believes that there will be complete defeat for all textual amendments and that whatever reservations are adopted will be of a nature that will not necessitate sending the treaty back to the other nations to ratify such reservations.

After reaching his hotel the President received the members of the reception committee and then was allowed to rest until 12:30, when he was the guest of honor at a luncheon attended by some 2,000 persons.

President Is Urged to Speed Action on Steel Workers' Controversy

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 5.—President Wilson today was expected to give his "prompt attention" to the steel issue, in an attempt to prevent a general strike in that industry.

In a telegram sent to the Chief Executive at St. Louis, the sub-committee charged with securing a conference with E. H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation, stated: "We cannot now affirm how much longer we shall be able to prevail upon the men not to engage in a general strike. If the men can no longer be restrained, it is impossible to foretell what the future may hold in store."

The telegram set forth that the steel men "rely upon their case as it was presented to you last week, and your earnest declaration to bring about a conference for the attempted adjustment of the controversy."

A meeting of the presidents of the twenty-four international unions with which the steel workers are affiliated will be held in Washington on September 9, "to take such action as it deemed necessary," the President was informed, and the request was made that he communicate on or before that date whether in his opinion a conference with Gary is possible.

The text of the telegram follows:

CHARGE BRUTALITY.

"The executive committee representing the various international unions in the iron and steel industry met today to consider the awful situation which exists in many of the iron and steel industry centres. The coercion, the brutality employed to prevent men in unions from meeting in halls already engaged, upon private property in the open air, the thuggery of the corporations' emissaries, the wholesale discharge of numbers of men, for no reason than the one assigned, that they have become members of the union, have brought about a situation, where it is exceedingly difficult to withhold or restrain the indignation of the men and the resistance they declare it is their purpose to present.

"The executive committee, relying upon the case as presented to you last week and your earnest declaration to endeavor to bring about a conference for the honorable and peaceful adjustment of the matters in controversy, have thus far been able to prevail upon the men not to engage in a general strike.

FEARFUL OF RESULTS.

"We cannot now affirm how much longer we shall be able to exert that influence, but we urge you, even in the great work in which you are engaged, to give prompt attention to this most vital of issues; for if the men can no longer be restrained, it is impossible to foretell what the future may hold in store, for an industrial crisis may ensue and frustrate the project which you have worked at for a peaceful adjustment of industrial affairs in our country.

"A meeting of all presidents of the international unions in the steel industry has been called to take place on Tuesday, September 9, in Washington to take such action as they deem necessary. May we not have your reply on or before that time as to whether or not a conference with the Steel Corporation is possible?"

The telegram was signed by Samuel Gompers, John Fitzpatrick, D. J. Davis, William Hannon, Edward J. Evans and William Z. Foster, the committee.

German Commander Denies Cruelties in Africa

By Universal Service.

Berlin, Sept. 5.—General von-Lettow-Vorbeck, who commanded the German forces in East Africa, has issued the following statement to the press:

"I hereby emphatically deny the charges published in the Westminster Gazette of German cruelties in East Africa. Isolated irregularities may have occurred, but that happens in every war, and I know of such cases in the enemy's camp.

"The English Generals, Smuts and Deventer, who are familiar with the conditions, will corroborate me. Many wounded Englishmen who preferred to be treated by German doctors rather than by their own, had faith in the humane conduct of Germans."

Wilson's Reference to Labor Is Impeachable, Says Senator Sherman

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 5.—"Public officials have been impeached for less," Senator Sherman of Illinois declared in the Senate this afternoon, referring to President Wilson's declaration in Columbus that the labor conference provided by the Treaty of Versailles would be called whether the treaty was ratified or not.

"It is an appeal to the lawless," Senator Sherman said. "Certain foreign powers have ratified or approved the treaty with Germany so that the same is now binding upon the several governments. Some of such governments require no act save that of the King, monarch or other executive authority. The treaty-making power of the United States is not entirely vested in the President. It is a joint exercise of that power by both the Senate and executive. No negotiated treaty is binding upon the American people or their government until the treaty has been approved or ratified by both such joint powers."

POLICE UNION WILL MEET TONIGHT

the freedom of the patrolmen to organize or bring about their discharge from the department.

The action will probably follow along the lines taken by the policemen of Washington, who yesterday secured an injunction restraining Commissioner Brownlow from carrying into effect an order preventing the men from joining the union and threatening their suspension. The order there also prevents his using the questionnaires among the men.

At Fay Hall this afternoon and tonight the members of the Boston Policemen's Union will gather in a special meeting. Just why the meeting has been called is not known. Day men will attend the night session, while during the afternoon the night men will be present.

Coincident with this announcement came one that the meeting of the Policemen's Post of the American Legion had been postponed. The members of that body, of which President McInnes of the union is also the commander, are practically all members of the union.

Thus far there have been no plans perfected for further conferences between the Mayor's committee and the officers of the union. The committee itself is proceeding with its plans and is still hopeful of a settlement without serious labor difficulties.

Herbert Parker, former attorney-general, who is Mr. Curtis' counsel, feels confident that the attitude of the commissioner in the present difficulties is the proper one. He has gone into the situation thoroughly and has discussed his ideas with Messrs. Feeney and Vahey, counsel for the officers.

The union counsel conferred until late into last night, and it is presumed that they were strengthening their cases for presentation to a court in an effort to prevent drastic action by the commissioner. Among the members of the union the attitude continues one of united support to the officers of the body in their demands and troubles.

Washington Police Fight Injunction Plan to Break Their Union

Washington, Sept. 5.—Members of the Metropolitan police force of Washington, which is the newest police organization to form a union, won their first victory against Commissioner Brownlow of the District of Columbia, who has refused to allow them to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

The policemen, six hundred in number, obtained temporary injunction from Justice Gould of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, restraining Commissioner Brownlow from carrying into effect an order directing the policemen to withdraw from the union by Sunday night under penalty of suspension.

The order is returnable September 11. It also restrains Commissioner Brownlow from requiring the men to hand in the Questionnaires on which they were to state whether they belonged to the union.

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor appealed unsuccessfully to the district commissioners to withdraw their opposition to the union. He said that the American Federation of Labor and the I. W. W. were the only organizations with which the police union could associate itself. He told the commissioners that to oppose the union would be to place a stigma upon the Federation.

WOMEN IN DEMAND FOR FACTORY WORK

The demand for women factory workers of all kinds far exceeds the supply in Boston, according to the August report of the Public Employment Office in Kneeland street. This report notes an increasing tendency among manufacturers to get women into boot and shoe factories, garment factories, book binderies and other comparatively heavy work. During the month 1499 discharged service men visited the office. Of this number only sixty-two were placed. There was a heavy demand for carpenters, masons, bricklayers and painters. With the reopening of school, demand for boys at good wages has increased. Women for hotel and housework are rare visitors at the office.

American Readers Asked to Send in Their Opinions on the Questions

William F. Tanner of Chicago started with his wife to the movies. Crossing a railroad track Mrs. Tanner caught her foot in the rails. Efforts of herself, her husband and a flagman failed to free it. An express was thundering toward them. Finding that he could not save his wife, Tanner clasped her in his arms and waited. Both were killed. At home were three children. These children are orphaned.

Did Tanner do right?

What is the man's duty in such a case? Does he owe his first thought to his wife or to his children? Should he die with the former, or live for the latter?

It is like the old story of the man who was out in a boat with his wife and child when the boat capsized. He could save only one. What one ought he to save?

The Chicago man was unable to save his wife, but was able by his self-sacrifice to comfort her last moments, to lessen some of the terror of death.

On the other hand, had he leaped to safety he would have been spared to provide for his helpless little family. Which was his duty?

What do American readers think? What would you do, male readers, in a similar case? Women readers, what would you have your husband do if you were in the position of Mrs. Tanner?

Woman Would Not Condemn Tanner for Devotion to Wife; Acted in Moment of Terror

Editor Boston American:

Whether Mr. Tanner did right or wrong, there can be no doubt, it seems to me, that his last act was one of sublime devotion. He acted on impulse, and that impulse was a generous and self-sacrificing one. There will be many to say that he did wrong; that he should have lived for his children, especially as he could do nothing for his doomed wife.

But he had no time to weigh the pros and cons, the right and wrong. It was a moment of desperation and terror. Very likely what he did was not in accordance with his own best judgment, had he had time to reflect. One cannot help feeling deeply moved by the whole story, and by the plight of the orphaned children; but I feel that the husband's devotion should be appreciated, and not interpreted as a father's desertion and neglect.

Mrs. J. J. H., Boston.

"Pater" Thinks a Jury of Fathers Would Decide That Tanner Did Wrong

Editor Boston American:

Did Tanner do right?

Bachelors are not competent to answer this question, nor are husbands. None but a jury composed entirely of fathers would be qualified to judge this father of three children, who, when their mother was trapped in the path of an express train, chose death with her when he might easily have escaped.

Tanner was wrong. But no man, and certainly no woman, is able to judge intelligently the degree of his culpability, nor to determine the motive which prompted his act.

Tanner acted on impulse, and impulse finds no explanation in cold-blooded psycho-analysis. Perhaps his impulse was wrong, but neither environment, education nor religious instruction can be blamed for the vagaries of impulse.

Neither should Tanner be blamed. It would not be just, because he cannot testify in his own defence; he cannot appear to explain his motive.

But public opinion will try him, nevertheless, and the fathers will be almost unanimous in finding him guilty. PATER.

Believes Tanner's Act Unjustified Morally as Well as Naturally

Editor Boston American:

I believe that Mr. Tanner's act was unjustified both from a moral and a natural standpoint. There is no law of God which permits man to take his life under any circumstance. If Mr. Tanner merely risked his life in an effort to save his wife, his act would have been justified. When he saw that this was impossible, then he knew that every law of nature demanded that he provide for his three children. His wife gained nothing by his death, and his children lost the affection and support of their father.

Should Have Thought of Children First in Crisis, Says "Constant Reader"

Editor Boston American:

I read your interesting article the other day on the subject was Tanner right to stand in the path of a train and get killed with his wife. I think it was a very foolish thing to do. His children are now orphans and a burden to the world. It was an awful position, but even so he shouldn't have committed suicide for grief of his wife, but should think of his children first.

SIX INVOLVED IN ALLEGED OIL FRAUDS

Four City Officials and Two Outsiders, Implicated—Mayor's Action Awaited

Four city officials and two outsiders, one of whom is a prominent politician, are involved in the alleged road-oil fraud unearthed by the Finance Commission by which the city lost $11,520, according to those on the "inside" at City Hall.

It is common talk at City Hall that if the facts become public one of the biggest scandals in the history of the city will be disclosed, even though this is a "good government" administration. It is the first expose of alleged graft since Mayor Peters assumed office two years ago. That money probably changed hands in connection with the oil deal is freely asserted.

One of the chief questions asked by "spies" is, "Has Chairman George A. Flynn of the Finance Commission got himself 'in bad' as the result of exposing the alleged oil fraud?" Has he secured the enmity of a power in city politics?

Another question asked by those on the "inside" is, "Will a certain city official be picked as the 'goat' to cover others higher up?"

Persons familiar with the facts are wondering how far Mayor Peters will go in the matter. They are watching him with interest. They wonder whether he will refer the Finance Commission's report alleging attempted fraud and illegal acts to the District Attorney for criminal action. Twenty-four hours after the Finance Commission's report was handed to him the Mayor had not read it, he admitted to a Boston American reporter. He said that he was not even familiar with its contents and that he probably would not issue a statement until after consulting Public Works Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan upon his return from vacation next Monday.

When informed by the American reporter of the main allegations in the Finance Commission's report Mr. Peters said he might give out a statement before consulting Sullivan.

"Red Terror" Only True Bolshevism, Says Lenine

Stockholm, Sept. 5.—Nicolai Lenine believes the recent downfall of Bela Kun's Soviet regime in Hungary was due to its "weakness in not instituting a reign of terror to crush the Bourgeoisie once and for all."

The Russian Bolshevist Premier expressed this view in a speech at Moscow, according to a dispatch from that city.

"The only way to save Bolshevism is by the red terror, without which Kolchak and Denekine would triumph," he said.

BOY BEATEN AS HE PUTS OUT SALEM FIRE

Police Believe Strikers at Toy Factory Cause of Attack

Alfred O. Boudreault, a sixteen-year-old employe of Parker Brothers, toy manufacturers of No. 190 Bridge street, Salem, was severely beaten today when he attempted to extinguish a fire in the factory basement, according to the police.

The boy, whose injuries were treated at the Salem Hospital, said that he was set upon by another boy, who called him a "scab." The police say there is a strike in progress at the factory, where large quantities of toys are made.

An alarm was rung in from Box 221 and the blaze in the basement extinguished by the fire department after it had threatened to destroy goods valued at $100,000.

According to the police, Boudreault told them he was at work in the basement of the factory about 8:40 today. While sweeping up, he discovered a small fire in one corner, and started to stamp it out. As he did so another boy, whose name he declared he did not know, appeared, and calling Boudreault a "scab" began to beat him up.

Boudreault ran out of the factory with blood streaming from his face, taking refuge in the nearby store of Clarence West. He told his story to Mr. West, who turned in an alarm and notified the police. They are investigating.

5-CENT FARE FOR EAST BOSTON DEMANDED

Representative Hearn Charges Discrimination by Public Trustees of Elevated

Charging that the public trustees of the Boston Elevated have discriminated against East Boston, and in favor of South Boston, Representative William H. Hearn of East Boston today addressed a letter to the trustees requesting that a five-cent fare be established on lines operating through the East Boston tunnel.

He points out that the longest line operated through the tunnel, that to Orient Heights, is not as long as either of the South Boston routes on which the trustees have indicated their intention to establish a five-cent fare, and insists that fair treatment demands a like fare on the East Boston lines.

His letter to the trustees follows:

"Gentlemen—To say that your board startled East Boston by its announcement to the effect that a charge of five cents for a fare would be made on two lines in South Boston would be to state the true effect in a mild manner indeed.

DISCRIMINATION CHARGED.

"As is well known to your board, the East Boston situation, as it affects street railway transportation, is peculiarly its own. As you also well know, there is no ride on the Boston Elevated system which is as short, but yet so far. While it is only a three-minute ride, or less, between Maverick square and the Atlantic avenue station in the East Boston tunnel, people must ride, and pay a ten-cent fare, as the only other alternative, that of walking, is not left to them. I doubt also that the longest East Boston route, that of the Orient Heights line, is longer than either of the two routes mentioned in your South Boston announcement.

"You may recall that a few months ago every section of the city, with the exception of East Boston, held protest meetings at which the efforts of the trustees were ridiculed and their actions severely criticised, perhaps East Boston adopted the wrong method of seeking justice.

"While I do not attempt to say that a five-cent fare for South Boston is unjust, I do want to impress upon the board the fact that in this matter it has been partial to South Boston and that it has discriminated against this district, as it is easily the district most entitled to a street-haul fare."

Following today's announcement that the Elevated would try out two five-cent fare lines in South Boston, lively agitation arose for a similar line starting at Dudley street and running along Washington street to Adams square.

The "short-ride low-fare" plan had aroused much interest among the riding public, and similar agitation is underway in other sections.

Advocates of the cheap fare claim it will add thousands of dollars to the receipts of the road, as many who now walk would ride to work if the charge were made reasonable.

5-CENT LINES OPEN OCTOBER 1.

The South Boston lines will be started October 1, and one of the trial lines will run from L street and Broadway to the South station, via the Summer street extension, and the other will run from Dorchester street to the South station, via Dorchester avenue.

"The company has expended approximately $50,000 to build additional track and carhouses, to provide new cars of the centre entrance type, which will become part of the general rearrangement of the service, which is anticipated will greatly improve transportation facilities in South Boston, although necessarily certain through service which is now being operated cannot then be operated."

HINES WARNS STRIKING SHOPMEN

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 5.—Walker D. Hines, director-general of railroads, issued a warning to railway shopmen who are on strike in Depew, N. Y.; Cumberland, Md., and Havelock, Neb., that unless they shall have returned to work by tomorrow they will be discharged.

Director Hines instructed the regional rail directors in the territories affected to proceed in accordance with the notice to the striking shopmen.

He declared the men are on strike in violation of the agreement between their organization and the Railroad Administration for an adjustment of their grievances and contrary to the instructions of their leaders to return to work pending this adjustment.

He added that those men who have not returned to duty at the time specified shall be considered as having left the service of the Railroad Administration. And if they return to work later it will be only as new employes.

1918 WINNERS TO COMPETE SATURDAY

Cream of Girl Swimming Talent Entered in American's Title Contest

With 237 girls entered as contestants for the five handsome prizes to be awarded winners in the Boston American swimming race in the Charles River Basin, Saturday afternoon, indications are that a record-breaking crowd will attend.

The course of the race is ideal and enables spectators a chance to get a close up view of the participants. Starting from the raft of the Metropolitan Park Commission, near the Union Boat clubhouse, on the Boston Esplanade, the contestants will swim to a stake boat near the Harvard Bridge, turning at the left and then down stream to the goal.

1918 WINNERS ENTERED.

Measurements taken of the course show that it is 1 mile and one-half miles and 200 feet.

The start of the race will be a sight that will live long in the memory of spectators. When the starter fires a shot from a pistol the girls will dive into the water from the raft.

The prize-winners last year were Miss Esthere Miron of Webster, first; Miss Tonjey of South Boston, second; Irene Demers of Ludlow, third; Olive Holland of Wollaston, fourth, and Katherine McArdle of South Boston, fifth. These girls fought neck-and-neck for the lead and at times passed each other. Most of them are entered in Saturday's event and though Miss Miron is picked by her friends to win, there are a number of dark horses in the field who may break her record of covering the distance in fifty-eight minutes and two-fifths seconds.

MISS HANNAFORD FAVORITE.

Members of the Cambridge Girls' Swimming Club are making wagers that Mae Hannaford of their city will capture the major prize and the championship of New England. She has been training for the event all Summer and in practice swims over a course similar to Saturday's and is reported to have covered the distance in fifty-seven minutes.

"I have all the confidence in the world that I will win the major prize in the Boston American swim," said Miss Hannaford. "I have improved a great deal in swimming since last year."

Theresa Giordino, sixteen, of No. 527 Broadway, South Boston, who will take out to swim by Rose Pitonof, will be among the contestants. She recently took part in a big swimming event in East Boston, winning several prizes and the commendation of army officials, one of whom presented her with a "Y. D." locket. She will also give diving exhibitions.

BURNS INTO SONG.

Florence E. Whittier of Dorchester, another contestant, was the thirty-fifth girl to round the stake boat in last year's race. She says she will be closer to the top at the finish this year. She composed the following bit of verse, entitled:

"STICKING TO IT."

'Tis the joy of being in it!
'Tis a thrill, which knows no limit,
And with "go in to do" the spirit
If you stick to it you can win it!

Then you be the lad, stick to it,
If you want to, you can do it,
If a squealer you will rue it,
So be a good sport, go thru it!

Then you'll know that you can do it,
For you've proved it and gone thru it,
And the thrill of "sticking to it"
Will be yours—so now go to it!

'TIGER' APPEALS TO HOOVER TO RETURN

Premier Declares Conditions Demand Food Dictator Continue His Work

Paris, Sept. 5.—A direct, personal appeal from Premier Clemenceau to Herbert C. Hoover not to abandon Europe in the moment of economic peril was the remarkable note struck in the course of the farewell interview between the two at the War Ministry.

The Premier said in his appeal that no one more than Hoover was in a position to realize the extreme gravity of the European situation, financially and economically, and the urgent necessity of the United States continuing, in peace the invaluable aid she had extended Europe during the war.

"Clemenceau even protested earnestly against the food dictator's return to the United States. He urged that it was absolutely necessary for Mr. Hoover to come back and continue to act as administrator of the American relief measures.

Mr. Hoover replied that he had no authority to bind President Wilson to any promise in this respect, but said he would report fully the gravity of the situation which, he assured the French Prime Minister, he, Hoover, keenly appreciated.

He also assured the "Tiger" that if he had any advice to give at all it would be in the sense of recommending the continuation of the American economic aid to France.

M. Clemenceau expressed his heartfelt thanks, remarking that the distance separating Europe from America rendered it difficult for Americans adequately to appreciate the situation here, and the vital need of special American measures in the common interest.

Entraining for London, Mr. Hoover said he had neglected his own business for five years, and that the time had now come when he positively must devote his energy to overhauling it. He will first go to California in connection with his trustee duties of Stanford University.

THREE HELD IN $60,000 AS GUNMEN

Heavy Bail Ordered for Several Others Indicted by Middlesex Grand Jury

Not for many years has there been such a collection of alleged gunmen and burglars, reputed auto thieves and false key workers, besides minor offenders, as appeared before Judge Philip J. O'Connell in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge today when the September session of the Middlesex County Grand Jury made its report.

Frank Baxter, Richard M. Sullivan and Albert M. Doherty, alleged auto bandits, were indicted for assault with attempt to kill Walter Berry, a photographer, employed by the Boston Globe, and also for an attempt to steal Berry's automobile. Berry is in a critical condition at the Cambridge Relief Hospital as the result of a bullet wound in the chest. District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts said he deemed this a very serious case and one that might cause a murder charge. He asked that bail for each prisoner be fixed at $20,000 which was done.

George La Normandin, sixteen, had six charges of breaking and entering against him. The breaks were in houses in Medford and Stoneham. He was held in $1,000 for trial.

William Allston and Charles L. Russell, both colored, were charged with four breaks in Cambridge, the alleged loot ranging from cigarettes to a bass drum. They were held each in $10,000.

James Frazier, also colored, was held in $2,000 for breaking and entering. He was captured at the point of a revolver in the store of the Harvard Co-operative Company in Cambridge by Patrolman John W. Roberts.

Harry Berwin, alias John Smith, alias George Boyd, was held in $20,000 on ten charges of breaking and entering at Belmont, Watertown, Newton and Cambridge residences.

William B. Helck, alleged false check worker, was held in $10,000 on four charges of larceny of money from Framingham, Somerville and Woburn banks.

Edward J. Welby, alias Earl Wilson, was held in $5,000 for two alleged breaks in Medford homes and also having burglars' tools in his possession.

Joseph LaFarge was held in $3,000 for alleged larceny of autos in Lowell and Cambridge.

George W. Young, Edward W. Pearson and NesebAudillah were held each in $2,000 for alleged breaks in Medford, Cambridge and Lowell.

Abraham Tonken, a Cambridge garage man, was held in $1,000, charged with receiving a stolen car. Frank Perry was held in $2,500 for alleged breaks in Stoneham, and Albert St. Johnson, charged with two breaks in Cambridge, was held in $2,500.

PADEREWSKI PROTESTS GERMAN ATROCITIES

Paris, Sept. 5.—Premier Paderewski of Poland, who arrived unexpectedly in Paris yesterday, declared today that a serious situation had developed in the east as a result of the massing of German troops in upper Silesia. M. Paderewski said he had hurried to Paris from Warsaw to protest to the peace conference against the concentration of German forces against the Poles and against the continued atrocities by German residents there. He denied reports of Jewish persecution in Poland. The Premier will remain in Paris until the Austrian treaty is signed.

The will of Mrs. Catherine G. Wrightington of Brookline, disposing of $25,000 in real estate and $20,000 personal property, has been probated by the Norfolk County Probate Court. The will provides that all be held in trust for the benefit of her husband, Charles W. Wrightington of No. 94 Perry street, Brookline, and upon his death, two-thirds are to be given to the testatrix's daughter, Miss Julia L. Wrightington, and the remaining third to a son, Edgar N. Wrightington of No. 16 Molworth Court, Brookline. The court appointed the daughter and son executors.

FAVOR ALLIED MISSION TO RULE FIUME

Paris, Sept. 5.—The international commission of four generals, which was sent to Fiume to investigate the rival territorial claims of the Italians and Jugo-Slavs, is about to report and will recommend the appointment of an allied mission to straighten the affairs of the city, the Secolo stated today.

According to the Secolo the commission will make the following recommendations in addition:

1—Dissolution of the national council to be replaced by a representative council elected under the supervision of the peace conference in Paris.

2—Disbanding of the Fiume Volunteer League.

3—Reduction of the Italian military contingent.

4—Suppression of the French naval base at Fiume.

5—Appointment of an Anglo-American police force to insure order at Fiume.

Suit for $12,000 for services has been filed in Norfolk County Superior Court at Dedham against the city of Boston by John J. Crane as administrator of the estate of Joseph A. Says Neighbor Fell When Decoyed by Pink Sweater

Found guilty of stealing a pink sweater from the clothesline of Mrs. Victoria Hanlon, John H. Mullen was fined $15 today by Judge Hayden in Roxbury Court.

At the same time Judge Hayden examined Mrs. Hanlon on her use of a receiver. Mullen appealed. He was represented by President Ford of the Common Council.

Mullen lives at No. 28 Weston street, and Mrs. Hanlon at No. 127 Cabot street, both in Roxbury. She keeps a store and likes neighbors. The alleged theft took place August 12. Mrs. Hanlon testified that she had previously lost three articles from her line, and that she put out the sweater as a decoy and lay in wait. She said that Mullen entered the yard at 1:30 a. m. took the sweater and escaped although she fired at him twice. He was identified also by neighbor Benjamin, and by Mary Fitzgerald, a neighbor.

Mrs. Hanlon several months ago had Mullen arrested, charged with use of profane language. He was fined and appealed, and further litigation on this complaint is still pending.

SHOES OF ANNA HELD BOUGHT AS SOUVENIRS

New York, Sept. 5.—An astonishing number of visitors thronged Room 117 at the Waldorf-Astoria to purchase, or if they could not purchase, just to see, the wonderful gowns that had been worn on the stage and on the street by Miss Anna Held, the actress who had endeared thousands to her by her piquancy and charm.

All day long the procession continued, of buyers and of those who wished to look upon the dresses worn by the little actress whom they loved, and whose brave fight against death had interested their friendship.

There was something pathetic about the 110 pairs of tiny No. 2 shoes. In numbers only were they impressive, despite the sparkling beads and buckles of some, which abound with rhinestones, for they appeared so futile. Nevertheless, those tiny shoes had danced their way into the hearts of many, and not a few of the visitors bought a pair just as souvenir memories of the days when they had been worn by Miss Held.

Included in the articles offered for sale are Miss Held's jewels, but they were not on exhibition. Photographs of the jewels were on view and prospective purchasers were informed they could see the jewels at the safe deposit vault where they are kept.

Among those interested in the new post are Edward Wendin, Albert Allen, Frank Everton and Walter Burke.

U. S. BOARD SEES LOWER PRICE MOVE

Expects Early Solution of Wage Problems, Thereby Settling Industrial Situation

Washington, Sept. 5.—A movement toward lower prices seems to be in progress, and there is a feeling throughout the country that a satisfactory solution of the price and wage problems will be reached, according to a report on business and financial conditions for August made public by the Federal Reserve Board today.

The actual volume of business transacted continues at an extremely high level for the season of the year, agents of the board found, although the transportation difficulties and shortage of labor have been hampering factors in certain lines.

BUSINESS IMPROVING.

It was found, however, that on the whole the agricultural outlook was "distinctly less favorable" than it was a month ago, although the large acreage sown in certain cases will compensate for the decreased yield per acre.

"The general business situation," the report states, "while presenting some disquieting features is, however, at bottom strong. Barring industrial conflicts the customary swell in the volume of business during the Fall months is probable.

Referring to the industrial situation, the report stated:

"As corollary to the price problem and the cost of living, there is the feeling of labor unrest, which is marked at the present time and which has given impetus to the agitation concerning prices.

LABOR UNSETTLED.

Reports from the majority of districts designate the labor situation as "unsettled," although from Chicago it is stated that "the labor crisis which was giving general alarm a fortnight ago appears to have passed," while several other districts report such conditions as fairly satisfactory.

The strike of the railroad shopmen, the report states, "has been far-reaching in its effects and has resulted in material embarrassment to trades."

In certain districts, the report sets forth, there has been found a "decreasing efficiency of labor," which the board ascribes to "relaxation from wartime pressure for maximum production."

"At the same time," the report adds, "additional demands made by the workers have been granted, in large part due to the general shortage of labor, skilled and unskilled, which exists in many sections.

"In many districts it is reported that no one who wishes to work need be idle, and actual surpluses of labor which are reported are few and scattered."

The Federal Board agents found that retail trade continues "exceedingly active and in many sections little of the midsummer lull is noted." A significant statement is that "the demand for watches and jewelry continues very heavy, while in some districts a lessening of the demand for shoes and clothing is perceptible."

City Gains Nearly $20,000 in Bank Deposits

Mayor Peters announced today that as a result of an adjustment made by City Treasurer Murray over a year ago in the interest rates paid by certain banks on city of Boston deposits, the city has received during the period from July, 1918, to July, 1919, both months inclusive, $19,425 more than it would have received under the old arrangement over a similar period.

If the former interest rates had been in force the income of the city would have amounted to only $110,604, but under the more favorable arrangement the income of the city was $130,113 for the period mentioned.

FOSS DEMANDS COOLIDGE ACT ON ELEVATED

Says Governor Should Take Steps to Put Road Under Public Ownership

Former Governor Foss today publicly demanded that Governor Coolidge take steps at once to place the Boston Elevated and other street railway lines under public ownership.

Speaking at the Fitchburg Fair, he accused Governor Coolidge of unnecessary delay, and said: "How much evidence does the Governor want? Will he act? If not, why?

"Here is Mayor Peters, representing as he does a great city, publicly demanding that the Elevated system be taken over by the city as the only way out. What more can Governor Coolidge want?

"Joseph B. Eastman, Massachusetts member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who was a member for several years of our own Public Service Commission, and who knows the railroad and railway situation almost better than any one else, comes all the way from Washington to tell the Governor's commission that public ownership is the only right solution.

"The results of the hearings thus far have been simply to confirm what I have been saying publicly these weeks. Public ownership should come immediately."

Turning away from transportation problems, the former Governor attacked Governor Coolidge's food commission. He said: "The commission has brought out no new facts. We knew it all. No commission was necessary. The Governor should have his ear to the ground and hear what the people are demanding. He should look into the privations and sufferings of the people and take the necessary steps without further needless delay.

"All these commissions are merely camouflage."

Hot Meals and Dancing on Giant Airship During Flight

By Universal Service.
(Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, Sept. 5.—Restaurant meals a la carte or table d'hote will be served aboard the R-33, the giant airship which will start tonight on a two days' trip over Holland. She is the sister ship of the R-34 which recently made the trans-Atlantic round trip.

This is the first time that hot meals are served aboard any airship. A five-course champagne dinner will be given, by courtesy of the British air ministry, to the guests aboard the great dirigible, who will include Major-General F. H. Sykes, head of the Civil Aviation Department, and other government officials.

MUSIC AND DANCING.

After dinner the passengers will be entertained with Victrola concerts and there will be dancing. The only thing missing will be cigars, for smoking is not permitted on account of the danger it involves.

Major G. M. Thomas will be pilot of the ship, which will circle over Amsterdam, where an international aircraft exhibition is being held. The R-33 will drop mail there.

The food of the epoch-making aerial dinner will be served fried, boiled, roasted and cold. No landing will be made in Holland. So another hot lunch will be served tomorrow on the homeward journey, the airship arriving in England tomorrow night.

AIR SERVICE TO ITALY.

First information came from the air ministry today of plans for a passenger service between England and Italy. On Saturday Colonel W. D. Beatty, who flew to Madrid and back recently, and Lieutenant W. L. Ralkes will fly to Rome to consult with the Italian air ministry about the details of supervision of air traffic between the two countries. This is a 1,600-mile trip.

All the routes for commercial and passenger service will be picked out, landing grounds and custom stations will be located, and all information will be placed at the disposal of private aviation concerns. The traffic will be under the supervision and direction of the British air ministry, and regular service is expected to start in the coming Fall.

POSTAL CLERKS PUSH PAY CLAIM AT CAPITAL

Washington, Sept. 5.—Delegates to the eleventh annual convention of the National Federation of Postal Clerks went in a body to the Capital to urge their Senators and Representatives to increase the proposed bonus of $150 to $500, retroactive to July 1.

BLAME FOR HIGH PRICES PUT ON PACKERS

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 5.—Centralization of food products by the large packers is driving prices upward, Mrs. Florence Kelly, secretary of the National Consumers' League, declared today, testifying before the Agriculture Committee of the Senate in favor of the Kenyon and Kendrick bills for regulation of the packers.

"Of what avail is it to get rising wages if all the increased pay goes for food at exorbitant prices?" Mrs. Kelly asked.

"Some one may inquire why we attribute the exorbitant prices of food to the packers. We do this in part because of their own advertising. From their huge advertisements in the daily papers, for instance, we learn that the Armour company is now producing rolled oats.

"I have been feeding my family on Chicago rolled oats during the past two months in an obscure little village in Maine, thirty miles away from a railway station. Does one sane person believe that it is in the end cheaper for oatmeal to travel from Chicago to Maine in two-pound or three-pound packages than it was to eat Maine oats, as my grandmother did?

"We used to get Rhode Island corn meal two pounds for a nickel. The industry has been so discouraged by the competition of the centralized producers with their enormous advertising that the Rhode Island and white corn meal industry is virtually extinct. A very small amount can be obtained for favored customers by a limited number of grocers in Eastern cities for 15 to 20 cents a pound."

The Canadian Senate Indorses Treaty After Debate

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 5.—The Canadian Senate, after lengthy debate, gave approval early today to resolutions indorsing the treaty of Versailles and the accompanying protocols.

The resolutions were passed despite opposition from the Liberals, who moved for an adjournment until September 16. Only the principles of the treaty were approved. The details are yet to be passed upon. There promises to be considerable opposition to these, particularly to Article X.

Senator Dan Durand urged in a speech that Canada withhold ratification until it was seen what the United States would do. He declared Canada had enough obligations at home without undertaking any responsibility in the settling of Europe's affairs.

LOCAL SHIPPING BOARD MEN RESIGN

It became known today that there had been wholesale resignations at the headquarters of the United States Shipping Board recruiting service here, beginning with that of Henry Howard, organizer of the service.

The resignations are understood to reflect the dissatisfaction of the officials at the removal of headquarters to Norfolk, Va., on September 15. All are Boston men.

Among those to quit the service along with Director Howard are Edward F. Flynn, assistant director; and Henry G. Vaughan, supervisor of navigation and engineering. Winfield M. Thompson, field agent, also has resigned, but this is due to the fact that his position is to be abolished.

Details of the approaching removal of national headquarters were made known today. About 200 men will lose their positions, as they do not wish to go to Norfolk. The receiving ship Meade and the training ships Eutoka, Virgin Bay, Alabat and Newton will be transferred to Norfolk.

ROCKLAND, MASS., U. S. A. Sept. 5, 1919.

IN REPLY REFER TO

Hon. Andrew J. Peters,
Mayor of Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Mr. Mayor:

Knowing that you, with Executives of other cities, are interested in matters touching upon the welfare of the community, we take this opportunity of presenting a suggestion for relieving in part the high cost of living.

Much has been said regarding the prevailing prices of shoes and many are predicting that the coming year will bring forth still further increases.

As the manufacturer of EMERSON SHOES, with a daily capacity of 8,000 pairs, we maintain a standard which calls for the purchasing of only the best materials. Our workmanship likewise is of the best, and we insist that our employees shall be paid wages sufficient for comfortable and contented living.

In common with other manufacturers, we are, of course, somewhat dependent upon the fluctuations in the leather market, but our forty years' experience in making shoes gives us a decided advantage in knowing when to buy to the best advantage.

Unlike most manufacturers, we have a different marketing policy which enables us to pass along the savings we make to the purchasers of Emerson Shoes. Every pair of shoes in our stores is stamped, while being made, with a fair and square retail price based on the cost of material and labor at the time of manufacture. If leather advances subsequently, please bear in mind that the stamped price cannot be raised. It is a guarantee of an honest price for all time.

Then, too, our shoes are sold through our own stores or through selected retailers who are willing to serve the public honestly.

The result of this open and frank method of manufacturing and selling, together with our specialized experience in making Men's and Boys' shoes exclusively, is that Emerson Shoes offer a greater value, a wider variety of styles and lasts, a greater wearing quality, a higher degree of comfort.

Respectfully yours,
C. O. Emerson
Founder.

CARUSO WANTS GIRL, BUT HIS WIFE A BOY

Stork Is Expected to Visit the Famous Tenor's Spouse Next December

New York, Sept. 5.—"Mrs. Caruso hopes for a boy, but for my own part I already have two boys—big ones—and a girl will be more than welcome."

Enrico Caruso, the celebrated tenor, was answering a question regarding a forthcoming event in his family.

It is expected to take place in December. Mrs. Caruso has decided to remain at the Knickerbocker, although her physician and some of her friends have been urging her to go to the Lying-In-Hospital. It was reported accommodations had been reserved there, and a trained nurse were engaged by the physician, but Mrs. Caruso cancelled the order. She said:

"We shall come back to the Knickerbocker when we return from Mexico. I prefer to be near my husband, and he is quite determined to have me near him."

HER FAMILY RECONCILED.

There has been an almost complete reconciliation between Mr. and Mrs. Caruso and the latter's family, the Park Benjamins. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Park Benjamin, have not actually pronounced the "bless you, my children" benediction. But her brother Park Benjamin, Jr., and others of the family showed their eagerness to forget the family's early disapproval of the marriage by meeting Mr. and Mrs. Caruso at the pier when they arrived Wednesday from Italy.

But parents have to be handled diplomatically. The arrival of the baby is expected to remove the last vestige of prejudice. Grandpa and Grandma Benjamin will want to come to see the offspring of the family, but if they are still unreconciled the baby will be taken to them. If the mountain won't come to Mohammed, Mohammed will go to the mountain—and that's settled.

The Carusos are a happy family. Young Enrico, the tenor's fifteen-year-old son, and his English accent are quite a favorite with Mrs. Caruso. Enrico, Jr., said:

"Mother will decide where I am to be educated. Mother knows I want to be an engineer, and mother sympathized with me in my ambitions. Mother's great."

YEARNS FOR A SON.

Mrs. Caruso is supremely happy. She said:

"Of course, I am an Italian citizen. My husband is an Italian, and by our marriage I took on his nationality. But I want the baby to be born in America, so that he, like myself, will have two countries."

"Then it is to be a boy?"

"I hope so. We came to America, naturally, because Mr. Caruso has engagements to sing in Mexico City, and then, of course, at the Metropolitan when the season begins in November. And it fulfilled my desire to have the baby born here.

"We have a beautiful villa. It is called the Villa Bello Sguardo, meaning the villa of the beautiful view. It is hundreds of acres in size, some of it under cultivation. It has all sorts of interesting animals on it, and a chicken farm. We employ twenty-three farm hands and other helpers. There are cattle, pigs and horses to be cared for."

"And the boy, Enrico, Jr.?"

"He is a splendid boy. He is very proud of his A. E. F. insignia. You know he was in the Y. M. C. A. in Italy during the war. One of the newspapers said he spoke broken English. How absurd! He was educated in England by private tutors and speaks the language like a native of Great Britain.

"His slight English accent will disappear, of course, after he has been here a while. We propose to send him to a preparatory school and then to a technical university, for he is determined to be an engineer."

WILL BUILD HOMES FOR FITCHBURG EMPLOYES

Fitchburg, Sept. 4.—With three large corporations already in line, plans for alleviation of congested housing conditions in Fitchburg are fast coming to a head, and it is expected that many families now either without homes or finding it difficult to obtain them will be enabled to purchases houses. The Simonds Manufacturing Company is the latest concern to consider plans for building homes for its employes. The American Woolen Company announced a similar project a short time ago. The Crocker-Burbank Company has also decided to erect at least two two-family houses near its mills in West Fitchburg.

R. I. POLS HEADING FOR KINGSTON FAIR

Providence, Sept. 5.—Every politician in the State able to do so, hits the trail for the Kingston Fair on Governor's Day, which falls on September 11 this year, and extraordinary preparations are in the making for the reception of the "visitors," as it is understood the question of United States Senator will be the big question under discussion.

It is said to be a rule in State politics that a politician who does not put in appearance on Governor's Day has lost his grasp on the political situation. Governor Beeckman wants to be a United States Senator on the Republican side of the question. At present Senator LeBaron B. Colt holds the helm.

U. S. PLANES AGAIN IN FLIGHT OVER CHIHUAHUA

Washington, Sept. 5.—Two American airplanes again have been seen in flight over the city of Chihuahua, Mexico, according to State Department advices. Whether they were the same machines that recently were reported soaring over the city was not stated.

Neither the War Department nor the State Department could explain the presence of American aircraft in that vicinity.

GERMAN RESORT TURNED INTO GAMING DEN

Suicides, Murders and Scandals at Bad Mannheim, Once Playground of Royalty

By Universal Service.

Berne, Sept. 5.—Bad Mannheim, the famous German resort whither, in days gone by, princes and prima donnas, captains of industry and moneyed idlers from all parts of the world used to stream for their Summer rest, has been converted into a second Monte Carlo. Several big hotels and private homes are full-fledged gambling places, and every other day brings a new story of scandal or tragedy.

At the "Villa Helnemann," one of the most notorious gambling hells, a merchant having lost 36,000 marks ($7,500) one night, "almost" caused the place to be raided by driving a fatal bullet through his head in sight of the whole gambling crowd.

The game stopped for a while, but when the police didn't come, the roulette wheel resumed its whirl.

The next day a man lost 750,000 marks ($175,000) but took it less tragically, but a few days later a player who had "dropped" 50,000 marks sank lifeless to the floor. His heart had stopped beating.

A beautiful woman who lost all she had was forced to pawn her jewels and wardrobe to get back home. A wealthy merchant who in a streak of luck had won 70,000 marks within an hour, was found murdered in a park nearby the same night, his pockets emptied.

SOMERVILLE I. O. O. F. HONORS GRAND MASTER

A procession preceded the affair in the high school hall.

Boss Wanted to Fish So Men Decided Not to Strike

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 5.—A threatened strike which would have tied up the entire service of the Suffolk Traction Company, putting its two trolley cars completely out of the running, was cleverly averted through the timely will of John Furman, general manager, equipment manager, manager of construction, general superintendent and superintendent of motive power, who appealed to the company's motormen to "have a heart."

"Say, John," said Motorman Johnson to the general manager, general superintendent, et cetera, "we've gotta have a raise in pay or we'll tie up the whole dinged system."

The system, by the way, consists of a line to the neighboring village of Sayville, over which one car an hour is operated, the motormen also acting as conductors.

"I'll say it's mean of you boys to pick this of all days for a strike," said Furman. "I've been planning to go bluefishing, but if you strike I'll have to quit out the fishing and run the car myself. Have a heart, fellows."

URGE PLATOON SYSTEM FOR FIREMEN

Petition to Secretary of State Insures Question Being Placed on Brookline Ballot

Friends of the Brookline firemen have filed with the Secretary of State petitions calling upon him to place the two platoon system for firemen upon the ballot at the coming state election. This was done in accordance with a recently enacted law relative to the two-platoon system, making it optional with the voters to adopt or reject it.

Under the law, it is necessary that petitions with a certain amount of signatures be filed. Friends of the Brookline fire fighters circulated several petitions throughout the town in consequence, and in a comparatively short time more than 500 certified names of voters were secured with but little effort.

The filing of the petitions at this time automatically places the question of the two-platoon system on the ballot, and it will be decided by the voters in November. The firemen brought up the question some months ago, but the town officials rejected it, as it did not meet with their approval.

'Expel Agitators in Foreign Pay,' Is Stone's Demand

By International News Service.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 5.—"The last thing labor wants to do is to strike. Unfortunately, that is the last thing labor has to do. No matter what the outcome, both sides are licked."

Addressing the manufacturing and employment managers of the Chamber of Commerce here, Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers made this declaration. He was speaking on "What Is the Matter With Labor?"

"The high cost of living is what is the matter with labor," Mr. Stone declared. "Our present economic system is practically a failure because it can no longer feed the people. A solution must be found and found quickly.

"One element of the present unrest, he charges, is due to the work of agitators paid by German and Russian money.

"Expel the agitators," he demanded.

DR. HARTMANN TO RETIRE AS DIPLOMAT

By Universal Service.

Vienna, Sept. 5.—Dr. Ludo Hartmann expects to retire as diplomatic representative of the German-Austrian republic in Germany, according to Der Neue Tag. The reason advised to his decision is that developments have shown the impossibility of a union between Germany and German Austria, which was the main object for which Hartmann has been working.

HARD TO CONVICT KAISER BEFORE IMPARTIAL JUDGES, SAYS LANSING

Would Eliminate Vengeance Entering Into Case, He Tells Bar Members

handicapped by the announced purpose of certain of its members to punish the Kaiser, that the commission began its study of the question of his criminal responsibility. The conclusions reached by the commission read as follows:

"'1—The acts which brought about the war should not be charged against their authors or made the subject of proceedings before a tribunal.

"'2—On the special head of the breaches of the neutrality of Luxemburg and Belgium, the gravity of these outrages upon the principles of the law of nations and upon international good faith is such that they should be made the subject of a formal condemnation by the conference.

"'3—On the whole case, including both the acts which brought about the war and those which accompanied its inception, particularly the violation of the neutrality of Belgium and Luxemburg, it would be right for the peace conference, in a matter so unprecedented, to adopt special measures, and even to create a special organ in order to deal as they deserve with the authors of such acts.

SHOWS RESPECT OF LAW.

"'4—It is desirable that for the future penal sanctions should be provided for such grave outrages against the elementary principles of international law.'

"The report in this declaration emphasizes the respect of the commission for the supremacy of law over the natural impulse to be avenged upon one who richly deserved to pay the penalty for his evil deeds.

"The third charge was the one on which an agreement could not be reached. The conclusion in the report is thus stated:

"'All persons belonging to enemy countries, however high their position may have been, without distinction of rank, including chiefs of states, who have been guilty of offences against the laws and customs of war, or the laws of humanity, are liable to criminal prosecution.'

"By this conclusion it is evident that the Kaiser might be brought to trial before a court with criminal jurisdiction, although to establish his guilt as a violator of 'the laws and customs of war or laws of humanity' would be no easy matter, provided the principles of legal justice and the common rules of evidence were observed by the tribunal before which he was brought. That he should be declared innocent of the charge was by no means an impossibility, if his judges were impartial and not merely instruments of vengeance.

AMERICANS DISSENT.

"To this conclusion the American members of the commission dissented, stating their position thus in their memorandum:

"'The American representatives are unable to agree with this conclusion, in so far as it subjects to criminal and, therefore, to legal prosecution, persons accused of offences against 'the laws of humanity,' and in so far as it subjects chiefs of States to a degree of responsibility hitherto unknown to municipal or international law, for which no precedents are to be found in the modern practice of nations.

"'Omitting for the present the question of criminal liability for offences against the laws of humanity, which will be considered in connection with the law to be administered in the national tribunals and the high court, whose constitution is recommended by the commission, and likewise reserving for discussion in connection with the high court the question of the liability of a chief of State to criminal prosecution, a reference may properly be made in this place to the masterly and hitherto unanswered opinion of Chief Justice Marshall in the case of the Schooner Exchange v. McFadden and others (7 Cranch, 116), decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1812, in which the reasons are given for the exemption of the sovereign and of the sovereign agent of a State from judicial process.

"'This does not mean that the head of the State, whether he be called emperor, king or chief executive, is not responsible for breaches of the law, but that he is responsible not to the judicial, but to the political authority of his country.

"'His act may and does bind his country and render it responsible for the acts which he has committed in its name and its behalf, or under cover of its authority; but he is, and it is submitted that he should be, only responsible to his country, as otherwise to hold would be to subject to foreign countries a chief executive, thus withdrawing him from the laws of his country, even its organic law, to which he owes obedience, and subordinating him to foreign jurisdictions to which neither he nor his country owes allegiance or obedience, thus denying the very conception of sovereignty.

"'But the law to which the head of the State is responsible is the law of his country, not the law of a foreign country or group of countries; the tribunal to which he is responsible is the tribunal of his country, not of a foreign country or group of countries, and the punishment to be inflicted is the punishment prescribed by the law in force at the time of the commission of the act, not a punishment created after the commission of the act.

"'The American representatives also believe that the above observations apply to liability of the head of a State for violations of positive law in the strict and legal sense of the term. They are not intended to apply to what may be called political offences and to political sanctions.

"'These are matters for statesmen, not for judges, and it is for them to determine whether or not the violators of the treaties guaranteeing the neutrality of Belgium and of Luxemburg should be subjected to a political sanction.'

"I wish to direct your attention to this last sentence because the distinction between a political sanction and a judicial sanction determines the basis of the right to impose a penalty responsible for the dreadful misery and waste which the world has endured and from the effects of which it will suffer for many years to come. It was difficult to subordinate the natural feeling of indignation and the instinct to do vengeance to a cold, dispassionate consideration of the character of the Kaiser's acts and their relation to law and justice. Yet one of the reasons that our country entered the war was to bring lawlessness to an end.

"We believed that an undeviating respect for law is essential to the prosperity and happiness of society and that the rigid maintenance of law, however distasteful it may be, is an imperative duty. It was with a determination to follow these precepts, to treat impersonally and judicially the submission of the conference, and to avoid being influenced by our own desires or by the pressure of public sentiment that we performed our duties as the American members of the commission on responsibilities and filed our reservations to the report of the commission."

SEIZED COCOA DUMPED INTO HARBOR AT SALEM

Salem, Sept. 5.—One-half ton of adulterated and misbranded cocoa was seized by Deputy United States Marshal Bancroft here today, assisted by the local board of health. The cocoa, in one-fifth pound paper cartons, was dumped into Salem harbor. The seizure was made under the Pure Food law. Beside cocoa the packages were found to contain sugar and cornstarch. The stock was the property of the Independent Wholesale Grocery Company of Front street, of which P. Shulsky is proprietor.

AMERICAN BAR 'HANDS OFF ON PEACE TREATY

Association Meeting in Boston Withholds Report of Committee

It was decided today, at the convention of the American Bar Association, that the special committee appointed on Thursday to consider the League of Nations with a view to making a report today to the delegates, should withhold its report. Although it was generally understood that the decision of the committee was in favor of ratification, and of introducing amendments to the league covenant later, the organization officers decided to maintain a policy of "hands off" and not to go on record in the matter at present.

The annual election of officers was the chief feature of the morning session.

Hampton L. Carson of Philadelphia, former attorney-general of Pennsylvania and for years historian of the United States Supreme Court, was elected president, succeeding George T. Page of Peoria, Ill., a judge of the United States Circuit Court. Judge Page will be a member of the new executive committee. Mr. Carson is sixty-five years old, married, and known as an author, lecturer and authority on constitutional law. He has been a member of the association since 1881. He has written the biographies of the United States Supreme Court justices, and possesses the autograph of every man who had held such office for the past twenty years. He was a fraternal delegate last year to the convention of the Canadian Bar association, held at Montreal.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Other officers elected were: Secretary, George Whitelock, Baltimore; treasurer, Frederick E. Wadhams, Albany, N. Y.; assistant secretaries, W. Thomas Kemp and Gaylord Lee Clark, both of Baltimore; executive committee, the president, secretary and treasurer, with the following members: Judge Page, R. E.; Lee Saner, Dallas, Tex.; chairman of the general council; T. C. McClellan, Montgomery, Ala., succeeding Ashley Cockrill of Little Rock, Ark.; T. A. Hamond, Atlanta, Ga.; U. S. S. Cherry, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Charles Thaddeus Terry, New York; Edmund F. Trabue, Louisville, Ky.; Thomas H. Reynolds, Kansas City, Mo.; George B. Young, Montpelier, Vt.; Paul Howland, Cleveland, O.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

Sub-committees were appointed as follows: Section of Legal Education, William A. Blount, Pensacola, Fla., chairman; Charles M. Hepburn, Bloomington, Ind.; Section of Patent, Trade Mark and Copyright Law, Melville Church, Washington, chairman; Charles E. Brock, Cleveland, O.; Judicial Section, Thomas C. McClellan, Montgomery, Ala., and W. Thomas Kemp, Baltimore; Comparative Law Bureau, Simeon E. Baldwin, New Haven, Ct., director; Robert P. Schick and Axel Thisen, Philadelphia; and Eugene C. Massie, Richmond, Vt.; Section of Public Utility Law, R. E. Lee Saner, Dallas, Tex., chairman; Edward A. Armstrong, Newark, N. J.; National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, William A. Blount, Pensacola, Fla., president; Hugh H. Brown, Tonopah, Nev., vice-president; Manley O. Hudson, Columbia, Mo., secretary; W. O. Hart, New Orleans, treasurer; American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology, Hugo Pam, Chicago, president; Edwin M. Abbott, Philadelphia, secretary.

There was a brisk discussion on the proposed revision of the constitution in matters concerning legal education. Portland, Ore., delegates entered a strong plea that the next convention be held there.

This evening the annual banquet of delegates and women guests will take place at the Copley-Plaza, and tomorrow the delegates will make an excursion to Plymouth.

Mayor or No Mayor, Here's a Chance for You, Girls

Lend an ear, girls!

Want a "real husband," who is a six-footer, "considered good looking" and a "good dancer," one who is "in perfect health and has all the finer qualities of a husband?" If you do, drop a sweet-scented note to T. J. Hunt, Box 433, Ranger, Texas. He is thirty-two years old and weighs 180 pounds.

This Texas Apollo has asked Mayor Peters to help him secure a wife, but the Mayor has replied to the letter that "the Mayor's office does not act as a matrimonial bureau," and regrets "that we cannot be of assistance to you in this matter."

As there are three women in Massachusetts for every man, it seems that some lonely soul might get a perfectly good husband by writing the man in Texas.

AUTOIST CHARGED WITH HITTING MOTORCYCLIST

It is claimed that June 6 McCarthy drove a machine belonging to Charles F. Cross of No. 175 Purchase street into a motorcycle ridden by Downey on Broadway, Chelsea. 'PHONE RATES WILL STAY UP IN BOSTON

Eight Per Cent. Reduction Will Not Affect Schedule Here, Say Officials

Although the New York telephone company has reduced its rates to subscribers 8 per cent., Boston rates are not likely to be changed for some time, according to officials of the New England Telephone Company. They stated today that they know nothing about the rates in New York, as the two companies are distinct.

They said, however, that the Boston rates had been fixed here by a government commission and were not subject to change for four months, at the end of which time it would require a mutual agreement between the phone company and the Public Service Commission to alter them.

The New York phone company has announced that beginning October 1 its rates to subscribers will be 8 per cent. less, and that subscribers will be charged only five cents for a five-minute conversation in any part of the five boroughs which make up the metropolis.

The decrease will not apply to public pay stations, toll calls, leased wires, telegraph messages or other charges, but simply to the regular residence and office subscription rates. It is figured that $2,500,000 will be saved to the 600,000 subscribers through the new rates.

Hal Forde Issues Statement Placing Blame on Boston Managers

Charging that the managers are to blame in the crisis in Boston theatrical circles through demanding that the Actors' Equity Association agree to lines laid down by the theatrical managers, Hal Forde, representing the Actors' Equity Association, issued the following statement this afternoon:

The managers have themselves to blame if the Actors' Equity Association insists on a closed shop, and refuses to accept the terms that the managers are offering, under the conditions that we shall not come out on strike at any time on behalf of the stage hands and musicians. They themselves forced us into the Federation of Labor. That was the only means we had for protection.

As an example of what a business corporation thinks of the Actors' Equity Association, when the Hippodrome in New York was closed lately by the strike, the United Realty Company, which owns the Hippodrome, realizing that its capital was being jeopardized, asked Mr. Charles Dillingham, managing director, and a member of the Producing Managers' Association, just what the trouble was and what are the demands of the Actors' Equity Association.

When that was explained by Mr. Frank Gilmore and Miss Marie Brown, they immediately agreed to accept them and recognize the Actors' Equity Association, realizing, as business men, that they were only being asked for fair play. As the result, Mr. Dillingham resigned as director, and the Hippodrome is now open, all of which is a great victory for the Actors' Equity Association.

We feel certain that when other proprietors of theatres realize what the greatest theatre in America has done, they will soon fall in line. We have never asked nor insisted on a closed shop, as it applies to actors, but we would be fine members of the Federation of Labor if we refused to stand by the stage hands and musicians in any trouble they might have, after the loyalty and devotion they have shown us.

New York Actors Reject Offer Which Protected Managers

New York, Sept. 5.—Because the Actor's Equity Association rejected a new contract giving the managers "reasonable guarantees" against the closed shop and future strikes, the drama was surged up and down the Rialto with more vigor than ever today.

The Producing Managers' Association offered the actors a contract which the managers said was better than anything the strikers had ever asked for. It provided, however, that an association of neither the managers nor the players could cause members of a cast to break their individual contracts. For this reason it was rejected.

The Actors' Equity Association accompanied its rejection with the announcement that it would not object to its members being seen on the stage with non-union actors, but declared the right of collective bargaining must be recognized.

The managers reiterated their determination to reopen the twenty-five closed theatres here regardless of the Equity's action. Heads of the stage hands' union declared the employment of non-union men would bring the full pressure of organized labor to bear upon the managers.

DO WANT CLOSED SHOP.

Francis Wilson, president of the Actors' Equity Association, has denied the report that the striking actors have at any time favored a closed shop, and declared Equity distinctly favors the open shop. The issue of the strike, he said, still hinges upon recognition by the managers of the actors' association.

There are many rumors along Broadway that the strike will end within a day or so, but no definite reasons are forthcoming as a basis for the prediction, and Equity members were emphatic in stating that only unconditional recognition of Equity will be acceptable.

Announcement was made that Equity is going into the booking business throughout the United States as the first step of the association to wrest from the managers control of the theatrical industry.

The strong position of Equity, Grant Stewart said, was demonstrated by the fact that since September 1 the organization has received 514 new members.

A new branch of the association has been formed, known as honorary associate of the Actors' Equity Association, to consist of representatives of the theatre-going public who sympathize with the striking actors. The honorary associates are to pay a membership fee of $25 and are to have all the privileges of the actors' association without being subject to any of its liabilities.

The Selwyn Theatre, which it was announced would open with "Challenge," has announced a postponement of the opening until Saturday, owing to the difficulties of installing a new set of stage hands.

TENNIS CHAMPION, BRIDE, GIVES GIRLS LOVE TIPS

Franklin Isaac Mallory, New York broker, and his wife, formerly Miss Molla Bjurstedt, who have just been married, watching the championship tennis matches at Forest Hills, Long Island. The former tennis champion declares that it is a mistake for women to marry men much younger than themselves. She is twenty-seven, her husband forty-two.

New York, Sept. 5.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, former champion of American women tennis players—Miss Bjurstedt that was and Mrs. Franklin I. Mallory that is—has practiced what she has preached, namely, that it is a mistake for women to marry men much younger than themselves. She herself is twenty-seven, and the man to whom she has just been married is forty-two.

And the bride in an interview not long ago:

"The trouble with women tennis players is that it keeps them dangerously young. Consequently they lack the companionship of the young, which to my mind is a dangerous mistake. There is nothing more pathetic than to see a woman close to the half-century mark in a sentimental attachment with a man in his twenties or thirties."

In this interview she also said:

"Love in life to women. But there are several kinds of love, and each has its proper time and place. When I am forty I hope to have other interests in life than playing tennis and flirting."

"Does the one inevitably lead to the other?" she was asked.

"In this country everything leads to sentiment," was the reply. "It may be because there are so many men. In England and in Norway there are more girls than men. In consequence, girls learn from babyhood to depend on themselves for their amusements.

"If men and marriage come their way, well and good. If not they find interest in athletics and work. They cheerfully make other women's children objects for their own maternal love. They substitute friendship for love and keep their bodies young and their minds healthy by exercise in the open, especially by walking tours."

COURT WILL ENJOIN SPRINGFIELD WORKERS

Judge Loring of the Supreme Court, at the conclusion of a hearing which has lasted for three days in a bill in equity brought by the National Equipment Company of Springfield against Union 214 of the National Association of Machinists, also of Springfield, announced that he should order an injunction to issue restraining the members of the union from inciting employes of the National Equipment Company to break contracts into which they had entered with that company.

The National Equipment Company will not employ any man connected with a union and one of the conditions of employment was that men must sign a contract pledging themselves not to join any labor union.

MAY HAVE TO BUILD NEW LAWRENCE SCHOOL

Lawrence, Sept. 5.—The city will be forced to build a new sixteen-room schoolhouse to take care of the congested conditions existing in certain sections, according to Superintendent Bernard M. Sheridan.

The schools, which opened with an enrolment of about 10,000 children, are filled to capacity, in all parts of the city, and a few more pupils will occasion an overflow. The school authorities are hoping that the remaining days of the week will see no overcrowding as many have not returned to their studies after the Summer vacation. The high school roster is the largest in the history of that institution.

HURLEY DENIES 'PASSING BUCK' ON FOOD

Declares Major Swanton's Letter Was Repudiated by Colonel W. H. Hart

In reply to charges in the Boston newspapers, purporting to come from Major E. E. Swanton, army surplus property officer, that Acting Postmaster W. H. Hurley was "passing the buck" in connection with the delivery of army food supplies, Mr. Hurley today issued a statement outlining the correspondence between the two departments. In the article, in which the acting postmaster was accused of evading responsibility, he was quoted as saying that there had been delay on the part of army officials in the distribution of food, and that there was no reason at this time why orders could not be taken in almost any amount.

Mr. Hurley in his statement today declared that Major Swanton was the official who, under date of August 29, notified the postmasters of New England that the original allotment of supplies had been changed and that the principal sellers such as tomatoes, baked beans, sweet corn, condensed milk, peas and flour, had been removed from the list.

SUPPLIES WERE LACKING.

According to Mr. Hurley, when Major Swanton was interviewed relative to this letter on August 21 and his attention called to the fact that hundreds of thousands of cans of these articles had been allotted to the Boston postoffice and not one can had been delivered, he replied that the items were not in stock and he had no choice but to refund the money.

Mr. Hurley arranged an interview with Colonel W. H. Hart, army supply officer, on August 22, and Colonel Hart's attitude, it is stated, was in direct contrast with that of his subordinate. It developed at this interview, according to Mr. Hurley, that Colonel Hart had no knowledge of the letter sent by Swanton, and he assured Mr. Hurley that if the orders could be held until Monday, August 25, he would make every effort to secure the goods from outside places in order that the orders might be filled.

ALL ORDERS FILLED.

During the past week the War Department has filled almost all of the orders of the Boston Postoffice and the matter of again resuming this sale was taken up with Major Swanton on Tuesday, September 2. Major Swanton, according to Hurley, advised the representatives of the postmaster's office that he could not let apart any of the commodities such as bacon, peas, tomatoes, corn, etc., for the Boston Postoffice, that there were several hundred unfilled orders on hand, that all orders received would be handled in numerical sequence, and that if the sale was reopened the public would have to be advised that no assurance could be given that any of the orders would be filled.

In view of these conditions, Mr. Hurley stated he was unwilling to reopen the sale.

LONG BLAMES G. O. P. FOR BIG 'L' TAX UPON STATE

Richard H. Long, candidate for the Democratic nomination of Governor, will hold rallies tonight at Broadway and D street, Dorchester, and Broadway and Andrew square, South Boston; Upham's Corner, Cottage and Dudley streets and Heath square, Roxbury. Mr. Long finished a three days' tour of the middle part of the State with rallies at Webster and Southbridge.

He advocated public ownership of street railways, stating that Boston was given "Republican" treatment for the railway subway. This treatment, he said, consisted of increasing the city's tax rate to $23.60, a jump of $2.40, outlining all previous records. He said the Republicans offer no remedy. He said if he were elected the referendum law would be repealed and five-cent fares instituted.

MOUNT VERNON SAILORS TO CELEBRATE ESCAPE

One hundred discharged sailors who served on the transport Mount Vernon will meet tonight at the American House to celebrate the first anniversary of the German attempt to torpedo the ship off Brest, France. Most of the men are from Greater Boston.

Captain D. E. Dismukes, captain of the Mount Vernon, will speak at the banquet following the reception. He was in command when the submarine attack was made, and it was largely due to his skill that the crippled transport made port safely with her cargo of wounded doughboys.

LAWRENCE DECIDES ON BAY STATE TUESDAY

Lawrence, Sept. 5.—The committee recently appointed at the suggestion of the Board of Trustees of the Bay State Street Railway will do their first "dictating" to the trustees as to what Lawrence needs in the way of better service and fares Tuesday, September 9. The committee has met and made up its mind what will be done with the Bay State lines.

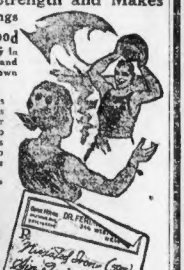

The trustees have agreed to abide by whatever advice the local business men offer. If the experiments fail, motor bus lines with five-cent fares, will probably replace trolleys here.

How Lack of Iron Weakens The Blood

Saps The Vitality and Strength and Makes Physical and Mental Weaklings

Nuxated Iron The Red Blood Food

By Helping to Supply the Iron Deficiency in the Blood Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Weak, Nervous, Run-Down Folks in Two Weeks' Time.

To every man and woman who lacks physical strength and energy there comes a longing at times to possess the power and endurance of an athlete, yet they go on struggling through life weak, nervous and run-down simply because they fail to realize that their trouble is nothing more than lack of sufficient iron in the blood.

Once the needed iron is supplied to enrich the blood and create new red blood cells, signs of weakness disappear and the body quickly gains in strength and vigor. It is said people would only keep their blood filled with strength-giving iron by taking a true blood food like Nuxated Iron when they feel weak nervous and generally "out of sorts" they might readily instill regained energy and endurance into the whole system, is the opinion of Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, who says: "Many a man and woman who ought still to be young in feeling is losing the old-time vim and energy that make life worth living simply because their blood is starving for iron. Iron is absolutely essential to enable the blood to change food into muscular, nerve and brain tissue. Without iron you don't get the strength out of your food. Your blood becomes weak, thin and pale and as a consequence you feel irritable, run-down and constantly worn-out.

"Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the exhausted tissues and helps to instill renewed energy to the whole system whether he be young or old. I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in severely aggravated cases with the most successful results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have made very gratifying reports. In regard to its great power over the nerves and strength builder.

If you are not well or strong you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing, but who have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had "given reasons" before for months without obtaining any benefit.

Manufacturer's Note—Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known in druggists everywhere. Unlike the inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund the money. It is dispensed in this city by Miller, Jepson, Leppert's and all other druggists.

FOUR ARRESTED FOR CORRELL KILLING

Carranza Lieutenant Declares They Acted on Orders From Diaz

Laredo, Tex., Sept. 5.—Two Mexican officers and two private soldiers, all of Carranza's army, have been arrested near Tampico and formally charged with the murder of John W. Correll in June. Correll, an American citizen, was killed on his ranch near Tampico. Official announcement of the arrests was made today by Mexican government officials.

Those arrested were Lieutenants Rafael Ruiz and Francesco Cambos, and Privates Blas Videl and Juan Valverde. They have confessed the killing of Correll, and state that they acted upon orders of General Lamen Diaz, one of Carranza's generals, who also is in custody.

The assassination of Correll was particularly brutal, and the State Department had made strong representations to the Carranza government for the apprehension and punishment of his murderers. Correll was shot down before the eyes of his wife and son, who escaped.

Mexican officials declare that the investigations now under way may show that other crimes against American citizens, formerly laid to bandits, were in reality the work of unscrupulous Carranzista army men.

Young Vanderbilt Finds It Hard to "Stretch" $25

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 5.—Financial problems are worrying Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., these days. One is not how to dispose of his "unearned increment" from his family's vast fortune, but how to stretch $25 a week over the necessaries of life.

Against the wishes of his family, young Cornelius has flatly refused to go to Yale and has taken up newspaper work on a New York paper. He is "cubbing" for $25 a week. His father informed him that no more allowance would be forthcoming, but that he might have his room at home and drop around occasionally for a meal.

When the family went to Europe, abusing up the house, and the scion of the Vanderbilts is sleeping on a small boat which is his own down on Long Island to save room rent, and eats—when he can—at places where $25 is looked upon as real money. And "care aren't many of such in New York now.

WOMAN REVEALS PAL OF "BANDIT" HAMBY

New York, Sept. 5.—The name of Gordon F. Hamby, who is in the death house at Sing Sing, awaiting execution for the killing of two men during the hold-up, still refuses all information regarding the man. It was first reported that Hamby had "squealed."

WANT FOOD SALE CONTINUED IN BROOKLINE

Protest "Discrimination Favoring Auto Owners" in Having One Army Store in Boston

Brookline residents took the lead today in protesting the establishment of one big central store in Greater Boston for the sale of army food. They make the claim that thousands will be unable to journey to South Boston to make their purchases.

The Brookline people have started an agitation to have the local food distribution centres reopened. They hold that the big central store idea involves discrimination, and favors those who own autos, to the disadvantage of the poor.

Since the closing of the local distribution stations, Brookline has done very little buying of army foods. Figures show that a comparatively small amount has reached the town through the postoffice, and that the townspeople want to do their buying in person.

Those objecting to a single store for the greater city want a Boston committee instituted to allot the foodstuffs to the various communities, and supervise the reopening of the local and suburban stores.

$1,000,000,000 Cost If We Police Turkey, Asserts Poindexter

Senator Points Out Huge Burdens This Country Would Have to Bear Under the League.

Washington, Sept. 5.—Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington has prepared the following statement for Universal Service on the duties and obligations imposed on the United States under the League of Nations:

By Senator Miles Poindexter.

Various duties and obligation will be imposed upon the United States for performance in distant parts of the world should the League of Nations be adopted as proposed. Although the chief purpose of the league, declared in a speech in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City on the 5th of March, 1918, ex-President Taft being present, that it would be "a supreme sacrifice." He well designated it as such.

The United States, in the position which it has heretofore assumed under the policies established by the wisest and best of our leaders from Washington and Jefferson to Roosevelt, occupied a position of freedom from the entanglements of European politics, and could wield its great and independent power to preserve peace and promote justice.

On various occasions it has done this, much to the benefit of the world, as in the case, for instance, when through the strenuous efforts of President Roosevelt, the war between Russia and Japan was brought to a close. The proposed League of Nations, however, would make the United States a party to every international strife and deprive it of its prestige and influence as an arbiter and justice.

Bitter Against Us Already.

Further than that it expressly imposes upon the United States obligations to intervene with military force, if necessary, in wars between the members of the league. The treaty of peace also burdens the United States with various governmental duties in particular parts of Europe.

Already, even in its primary form of the Peace Conference at Paris, composed of representatives of those same nations which would be the dominant factors in the League of Nations, it has created animosities against the United States in China, in Japan, in Italy, in Greece, in Russia, not to say in France, Egypt and Germany, all of which would have been avoided had the United States, after doing its share in the breaking of the military power of Germany, declined to assume responsibility for the disposition of Thrace, of Fiume, of Shantung and other disputed territorities.

The first of the concrete results to follow the adoption of the League and the treaty that is being put forward is the policing of Turkey by the United States. One of the principal agents of the administration in Europe estimates that this will require 100,000 men. Experts in the War Department estimate that it will require 150,000 men.

Billion Cost in Turkey Alone.

It is reported that the President has already sent a commission under General Harbord to Turkey to investigate conditions. The arming, equipment, drilling, training, maintenance and transportation of one hundred and fifty thousand men, or one hundred thousand men, or seventy-five thousand men, to Turkey, and the establishment and operation of this army in that distant part of the world, for a sufficient length of time to establish and maintain a permanent government in the country, and the protection of the constituent elements of former Turkish empire, will cost not less than a billion dollars.

The operations of this army will result undoubtedly in the sacrifice of many of its soldiers. Who is to pay the billion or billions of dollars to carry out this enterprise? Whose sons are to compose this army of one hundred thousand or more men?

Those who are advocating the League of Nations and the participation of the United States in the government of Asia and Europe, and the participation of Asia and Europe in the government of the United States, should consider the sources from which these vast sums are to be drawn, and should be ready and willing to furnish from their own families members of this army.

SENATE AMAZED BY THREAT OF HITCHCOCK

Country Will Be Isolated from World, His Warning on Treaty

Washington, Sept. 5.—Opponents of the treaty in the Senate were astounded by some of the statements made by Senator Hitchcock after his conference with President Wilson at the White House on the eve of the President's departure for the West.

As the Nebraska Senator's assertions are believed to represent the President's own attitude with respect to the treaty they have received much studious consideration by some members of the Republican majority.

This consideration has brought forth some views which probably will be presented to the Senate in the answers which will be made by opponents of the treaty to the President's speeches.

THAT "ISOLATION" THREAT.

Senator Hitchcock declared there was absolutely no chance of the treaty being amended, because, as he explained, an amendment would kill the treaty and the Senate would not dare kill the treaty, with the consequence of "isolating the United States politically, industrially and commercially from the rest of the world."

To avoid having such a fate befall the United States, Senator Hitchcock said, all amendments to the treaty must, and would be defeated, whether they were "good, bad or indifferent."

It has been suggested before in the debate that the failure of the Senate to ratify the treaty would leave the United States outside of the League of Nations, but never has it been threatened that rejection of the treaty would leave this country "isolated from the rest of the world, politically, industrially and commercially."

CALLS FOR NEW TACTICS.

Is this to be the ground of the President's appeal to the people to urge ratification? If it is, then Senate opponents of the treaty think the situation with respect to the treaty calls for some new considerations which should be carefully weighed.

The maximum estimate of Senators who favor the adoption of the treaty without amendments or of mild reservations is forty-two, five less than a majority of the Senate, and twenty-five less than the two-thirds required for ratification.

Therefore, the present sentiment of the Senate indisputably is opposed to ratification without reservation.

REED TO OPEN ANTI-LEAGUE FIGHT HERE

Missouri Senator Chief Speaker at Symphony Hall Mass Meeting September 10

The Boston American's big mass meeting in Symphony Hall on Wednesday evening, September 10, has been called.

Announcement that the American would sponsor a great mass meeting in opposition to the League of Nations struck a popular note.

To meet the great demand for seats and to insure seats for all who want to come, and their name in legion, several thousand tickets covering the capacity of the hall are to be printed and distributed. Announcement of where these tickets may be obtained will be made later.

AN HISTORIC EVENT.

In the great country-wide debate on the League of Nations now under way Boston is to have one of the most noted opponents of the covenant in the President's own party, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

The outcome of this great debate will be of historical significance, for it will determine which way the country is to go. Senator Reed will sum up the objections against the plan and will tell why, in his opinion, there is danger in America committing herself to such a league.

Senator Reed is to be only one of the speakers, he is the "big gun," the one in whom the most interest centres on account of his great ability as an orator.

The meeting is to be non-partisan, but that does not mean that the claims of the various nationalities which would be affected by the adoption of the league plan will be overlooked. Far from it.

TO PRESENT IRELAND'S CLAIMS.

Ireland's claims will receive all the attention they deserve from a speaker who knows his subject thoroughly. Any mention of what the effect of the league will be is incomplete without reference to Ireland's claims for complete independence.

Senator Reed will also discuss self-determination for the United States of America. He declares that under the league plan foreign nationalities will determine how large our navy will be and how large our army will be and where they shall fight.

Do you as an American feel this is right?

Great Britain is given six votes in the league's assembly to America's one. As an American do you approve of this?

Whether you are for or against the league you cannot afford to miss this history-making meeting in Symphony Hall. Remember the place, date and time, Symphony Hall, September 10 at 8 p. m.

WIFE 'UNWORTHY,' WON'T PERMIT USE OF HIS NAME

Macon, Ga., Sept. 5.—"I have no desire to get married again, but just don't want my wife to bear my name any longer," J. W. Jackson, aged seventy, declared in filing suit for divorce from Mrs. Jackson.

Jackson's matrimonial adventure began twenty-five years ago. The craft went on the rocks in 1915, Jackson asserts he has not heard of the whereabouts of his wife since. He says he is unwilling for his wife to bear his name longer because she is not worthy.

"Lazy" Czechs Take Yankee's Censure to Heart

Prague, Sept. 5.—Bohemian newspapers are publishing an alleged attack on the Czechs by Captain Sebastian, a member of the American Relief Commission in Bohemia, who is quoted as saying:

"The Czechs show poor appreciation of their liberation from a century of slavery. While the Germans are working night and main to get back on their feet, the Czechs are lazy. They shirk and try to live on the fat of the land without doing their bit."

"This, coming from an American, is a sharp and bitter verdict," says the newspaper Bohemia. "With such impressions departs the American Relief Commission, and it will certainly not conceal them when it returns to Washington; let us heed the warning voice and get to work."

MAYOR THANKED BY COMMANDER OF THE CAVOUR

Italian Rear Admiral Writes in Appreciation of Boston Welcome

Mayor Peters today received a letter from Rear Admiral Ugo Cona of the Italian battleship Conte di Cavour, thanking him and those associated with him for the reception given to him and his men during their recent visit here. The letter follows:

On behalf of the officers and men of the Conte di Cavour I desire to thank you for the wonderful welcome which Boston has given us. This has been quite truly a gift, for we carry with us to Italy, not only a pleasant memory of the cordial and graceful hospitality of your city, but a warm sense of friendship which you as Americans have shown the Italian visitors and which we also cherish for you.

Will you not be so good as to express to those associated with you our deep appreciation of all that has been done for us?

With the best wishes for you personally and for the prosperity of your city, believe me, sir,

Sincerely yours,
Ugo Cona, Rear Admiral.

What a Store Should Offer

Paine's idea of what a furniture store or any good store should offer and what NOT to offer is something like this—

Worthwhile Quality—NOT "sale or job lot" goods.
Unlimited Variety—NOT depleted stocks.
Moderate Prices—NOT too high nor too low.
Satisfying Service—NOT merely making a sale.

Summer visitors and residents of Boston and New England are cordially invited to visit and enjoy this large and unusual store, for, such a trip through their many individual shops and factories, all housed under one roof, will be a pleasant revelation of the distinct advantages of buying furniture and decorations at Paine's.

The illustration suggests an inexpensive cottage suite, in old ivory with quaint decorations—bedsteads each $42, bureau $55, chiffonier $52.

They had been passed up by Morse customers as being too heavy for midsummer wear.

BAKER ARMY PLAN FAVORED BY WILSON

Universal Military Training Policy Approved Also by General March

Washington, Sept. 5.—The universal military training policy proposed in the War Department's bill for reorganization of the army on a peace basis has the indorsement of President Wilson and General Peyton C. March, chief of staff. This was indicated to the House Military Affairs Committee.

The President also approved of the other salient features of the War Department's army program, which provides for a standing force of 576,000 officers and men, according to General March's information. The general said:

URGES PREPAREDNESS.

"The military authorities and the War Department have favored universal military training for many years, but this is the first time an administration has come forward in approval of the plan. Secretary of War Baker has indorsed it, and, because of the Secretary's position, it is a fair assumption that the President approves it, although I cannot quote the President."

Pointing out the necessity of avoiding a return to the state of unpreparedness which existed in this country before the war, the Chief of Staff declared that if the United States had spent in the development of a military establishment in times of peace the $14,000,000,000 that the army cost during the war there probably would not have been a world war. In any event, he asserted, Germany would not have dragged this country into it. He continued:

ADVOCATES LARGE FORCE.

"We were fortunate in having a wall created by the allies behind which we could train our men. We do not want a similar experience when we may not have such a protecting wall. We want to be in a position to meet every emergency. There are many men in the army and in the country thoroughly trained now, and we want to have as large a number of trained men."

SAYS 1,200,000 PERSONS IN U. S. ARE TUBERCULAR

More than 1,200,000 men, women and children in this country have tuberculosis and the disease claims 150,000 lives every year. This was the statement issued today by the National Tuberculosis Association, which conducts the annual sale of Christmas Red Cross seals. The sale is in charge of Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, managing director.

According to the statement eight of every ten persons are infected at some time in their lives but healthy persons resist the disease. The association emphasizes the importance of good food, sunshine, fresh air and sufficient rest and points out that individuals may aid in stamping out the white plague by a generous use of Red Cross seals.

FAIR WEATHER OVER THE COMING WEEK-END

Continued fair weather will prevail over the week-end throughout New England, according to the cheering news from the weather forecaster's office. There is no indication of any disturbance headed this way. Temperatures today were fairly even all over the country, with the coldest place at Northfield, Vt., at 34 and the warmest for New England at Nantucket.

MARKET HAS A FEW STRONG SPOTS

Shipping and Oil Shares Show Strength, but Steels Remain Weak

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, having failed to develop a decided trend during the morning. The market was rather weak on the whole, but rallied at times. It had strong spots, however. Shipping and oil shares attained a higher level, [illegible] recovered part of its initial loss. Trading was active, first hour transactions totalling nearly 400,000 shares. Foreign exchange [illegible]. Demand sterling 4.11¾, cables 4.15½, francs 8.34 and 8.32, lire 9.73 and 9.71. Lire checks touched a new low record figure. Marks fell to 4.35, also a new low.

Strongest stocks at noon included Mexican Petroleum, up 4 at 199¾; Stewart 2½ at 61¾, Transcontinental Oil 2½ at 58¾, Texas Co., 2 at 269, Marine common, 1¾ at 61¾, preferred 1¼ at 121½; International Corporation 3⅛ at 105, and Atlantic Gulf, 2 at 162.

Leading losses were Crucible, 5 at 175, General Motors, 3⅛ at 235¾, and [illegible] to 1⅛ a [illegible].

CRUCIBLE SLUMPS AT OPENING.

At the opening the majority of stocks were higher, but enough had declined to make the list a little irregular as to price changes. Steels were weak as a class. The early feature was the slump of Crucible [illegible] points from Thursday's [illegible] quotation [illegible] regard to this [illegible] New York settlement [illegible].

Many said that there had been covering of shorts on a large scale and one story was that a [illegible] account had been privately settled, but there was no indication of this in the loan crowd after the close. First borrowings were made flat as they had been for a long time and a moderate amount was returned and the rate later declined to 3 per cent. It could not be learned that the returns of borrowed stocks ran into any large aggregate, but those who were concerned in the borrowing said that most of these returns were only of 100-share lots."

MARKET SOON WEAKENED.

Within a few minutes prices took a downward trend and the market became rather weak. Outside orders to buy which came over the wires by night were not so numerous. Finding demand moderate bears became more strenuous. Shipping issues were strong at the start and increased gains during the first hour. Most oils advanced, Mexican Petroleum selling above 201. Motors were quiet during the first hour, Studebaker and Pierce Arrow being active and lower. Trading in coppers and rails was dull during the morning.

GOSSIP FROM WALL STREET.

Net profits of the General Motors Corporation and subsidiaries for the first half of this year were $45,900,500 [illegible] for the corresponding 1918 period they were $20,[illegible]. The balance for common dividends at the end of June this year was $29,135,842. A year previous it was $11,717,480.

Mexican Petroleum earnings for last year were equal to $14.13 on common stock, after allowing for preferred dividends. Gross earnings of the corporation amounted to $26,320,-[illegible]. This is its best showing for any year.

It is rumored on Wall Street that American Hide & Leather directors have been considering a plan to pay off back dividends on preferred. They approximate 116 per cent. It is planned, it is claimed, to pay off 100 per cent in new issue of 6 per cent stock and the remaining arrears in cash.

Wall Street Briefs

A new issue of $[illegible] preferred stock amounting to $3,000,000 of the Paige Detroit Motor Car Co. has been acquired by Bonbright & Co., Inc., and Chandler & Co., Inc., and will be offered after the approval of the Michigan Securities Commission. The proceeds of the issue will be used to retire the outstanding $729,950 of 7½ per cent, on October 1, 1919, and will be used also for expansion of the plant and for additional working capital.

George deB. Keim, vice president of Chandler & Co., Inc., has just returned from a five months' trip through South America, which covered Bolivia, Peru, Chile, Uruguay, Argentine and Brazil.

The over subscription of the offering of $[illegible] East Coast Fisheries Co. 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock by J. M. Taylor & Co. has been announced. Part of this issue is to be used to enlarge equipment, including the addition of new vessels.

CAR SHORTAGE AFFECTS COAL AND STEEL

Responsible for Complaints by Many Trades of Loss by Restriction of Output

Coal production has been affected by the car shortage and complaints of restricted output for the same reason are heard in many trades. It has affected steel, according to the Iron Age. That authority states:

"The August steel output will closely equal that of July, but shipments could have been far greater but for car shortage. The future, with the coming grain movement, does not hold much promise in this particular. Bookings generally exceeded capacity, and it is getting more difficult to place business with the mills."

PUBLIC CATTLE [illegible] TO CUT [illegible]

Meat was cheaper, [illegible] the grazing land in the Far West was cut up into farms, and in order to reduce the high cost of living members of the market committee of the American Livestock Association propose in a letter to President Wilson that 200,000,000 acres of public grazing land be placed under Federal control.

It is believed both by cattlemen and the public that the cost of meat could be greatly reduced if it could be sold direct from the range to the consumer.

Throw an Anchor to Windward!

A mile off a rocky, dangerous coast, whose jagged, storm-beaten cliffs tower toward the sunny sky like threatening Titans above a green and silver barrage of roaring, foaming surf, lies a little fishing smack. Around it the sea is calm; nothing warns of danger. Then suddenly out of the east rises a great black cloud bearing wind and rain. The sky darkens, a squall hits the fishing boat and sends her careening on beam-ends. She rights, and under bare poles struggles with the storm.

The gale is forcing her toward the breakers on the cliffs. Death looms nigh for all on board. And then the skipper's shout rises above the howl of the storm—"Throw an anchor to windward!" In a twinkling it's done—the anchor bites bottom—the cable groans but holds—the boat and crew are saved!

It's just the same in the lives of every one of us. We all need to throw an anchor to windward to keep from drifting on to the rocks of disaster. No matter how smoothly things may be going, misfortune's storm may without an instant's warning burst upon us. And if we haven't thrown an anchor to windward only God's mercy will save us from shipwreck.

The very best safeguard that you and I can have against the day of trouble is a SAVINGS ACCOUNT. Start one today, and build it up little by little, depositing regularly—no matter how small a sum. Then, when misfortune comes your anchor to windward—your savings—will keep you from foundering.

Open a savings account with your local national bank or trust company whose name appears on this page. They will guard your savings faithfully, pay you good interest, usually beginning monthly, and give you valuable credit and checking facilities. And their officers are interested in you as a fellow-townsman.

ROBINSON TO FIGHT CARBONE

Boxers Meet in 12-Round Final at Commercial A. C. Tonight

C. A. C. Selections.

George Robinson to beat Frank [redacted]e.

Battling Bagley to beat Joe Silva.

By JACK CONWAY.

There should be plenty of action at the Commercial Club tonight when George Robinson, Cambridge middleweight, and Frank Carbone of New York clash in a twelve-round tussle. When these men met at Portland last May, honors were even at the end of twelve rounds of milling.

Carbone is a fighter much along the lines of Harry Greb. He weighs close to 175 pounds and is able to hit from almost every angle. His blows land with stinging force, and what is of more importance they manage to reach their mark with a considerable degree of regularity.

The sixteen foot ring at the Commercial Club favors Carbone. It will give him an oppertunity to do much fighting at close quarters.

Robinson is confident he'll display enough ability to dispose of Carbone. During the past six months the Cambridge man has been traveling at a merry clip. In his last start, he disposed of Joe Eagan, which was quite a shock to the speculative element, who had made the Dorchester boxer a 3 to 1 favorite.

On paper the bout looks like one of the best bookings Bob McKirdy has made this Summer. As the fans have not had their usual allotment of shows this week, a big crowd is sure to be on hand to witness the festivities.

Joe Silva, West End welterweight, will receive another chance to dispose of Battling Bagley of Everett when he meets that worthy in the semi-final number of eight session. Bagley recently stopped Silva and the latter is out to stage a come-back.

Young Reagan of Everett will meet Young Donahue, Woonsocket boxer, in a six-round match, while Young Doherty of South Boston and Young Dempsey of East Boston will also battle for six rounds.

"A good fighter is always going forward."—Phil Power (Young Donahue).

Chick West, who claims the welterweight championship of New England, and Oscar Gardner of New York, will exchange blows in a twelve-round tussle at Clinton tonight. West cannot afford to lose to Gardner, who is a rugged miller, as he is trying to get a match with Young Kloby. Next Thursday night West will journey to Lynn, where he is slated to exchange blows with Paul Doyle of this city before the Casino A. C.

Here's a few stirring lines from Marty Killilea, manager of Johnny Wilson, which need no explanation:

"Jack Conway, Boston American.

"After reading for the past ten days the courageous remarks of that big, game giant who looks after the affairs of Young (Jake) Ahearn, I think it is about time to come to the defence of Johnny Wilson. Joe McCarthy says Ahearn should have been given the fight on a foul, that Wilson is a yellow quitter and a lot more about Wilson's gameness.

"Does Big Joe think he is game himself? Wilson wants me to say he will fight Ahearn and that two hundred and fifty pound manager of his together and make them both quit. Anyone who saw the Wilson-Ahearn fight knows who quit.

"I would like to ask McCarthy if he did not believe Johnny was game when he fought McDonald at Halifax, N. S. McCarthy gave Wilson two days' notice about the fight, and after being knocked down in the first frame Johnny came back and fought fifteen hard rounds.

"McCarthy says Jerry Moore told him he didn't want to referee and that Jimmy Gardner was my choice. Joe never did have much regard for the truth. Moore told me he never informed McCarthy that he didn't want to referee. McCarthy declared that if Moore refereed Ahearn would not fight, and rather than spoil the show I got together with McCarthy to decide the question.

"At the Kloby-Shevlin fight Joe said he had a list of five good referees. The first name he mentioned was Gardner's. I said the Lowell man was acceptable to me, and we notified Roy Green of this fact. McCarthy's own referee ruled that Ahearn was knocked out by a punch to the stomach.

"McCarthy says Ahearn is afraid to fight him again. Yes, he is—not. Wilson battered Ahearn around the ring in Lawrence and made him quit in Boston.

"The match is on, Jack, as far as Wilson is concerned. I'll be at the American office tomorrow to cover the $500 McCarthy has posted as a side bet for another Wilson-Ahearn fight. McCarthy says he'll fight winner-take-all. That goes, too. But watch Joe quit again.

"I see where Joe has a horseshoe in his den. Wilson hasn't any horseshoes, but he has the gloves with which he flattened Ahearn.

FOUR HARVARD MEN IN INTERCOLLEGIATE TENNIS

Harvard is sending four men to the Intercollegiate tennis championships, which start at the Merion Cricket Club next Monday. Captain George Helm, Chapman Hyams, Frank Hanighen and Brooks Fenno. Harvard rewards an intercollegiate champion with a major insignia.

TAD'S TIDBITS

THE GREATEST FIGHTER HE EVER SAW.

We are about to run a series of stories on this page about fighters. Of course we have our GREATEST FIGHTER. There are arguments every day about the star pugilist. Here on this page we will give you the views of different fighters, managers and promoters.

Sam Langford, himself one of the greatest fighters that ever pulled on a glove, was the first we interviewed as to his greatest fighter.

Sam picks Jack Johnson. He came with a natural. He didn't hesitate at all. We met him at Jack Dempsey's camp in Toledo the day before the big bout, and Sam was very strong for Johnson. He said that no man could lick Willard because Willard had licked the greatest man that ever lived.

"Didn't you say that Jeffries would lick Johnson?" we asked for a kid.

"Yes. Yes, I did say that, but I was sore at Johnson then," said Sam. "You know he gave me quite a licking a long time ago in Boston, and when he got to be champion he never would talk about me again. I was sore at him, but all the time, way down in my heart I knew that he was a great man. The day I saw him beat Jeffries made me surer. Jeffries was in good shape that day. He never could have taken the licking he did if he wasn't in great form. You know he was just as fast as ever, but he was like a baby when he boxed Johnson. I tell you that Johnson was so big, so strong, so clever. He had everything. He was never hurt, never had a black eye or a cut, and never broke a hand, and he beat the best in the world. I call that considerable going.

"He was never even tired in a fight. He just fought his own way, went about it in a business-like way and made the other fella look foolish. Hit? Yes, sir! I never hit the floor harder in my life than I did the night he hit me. I thought I'd go right through the floor of the ring.

"Nobody ever knocked Johnson down. I know he skidded with Ketchel and slipped with Sandy Ferguson, but he was never there on the floor while the referee counted.

"Great man, that Johnson. I think that Gans was another great man, but Johnson, to me, was the best that ever boxed in a ring."

Jess Willard Says—

All the world loves a winner—with the exception of the loser.

An English Referee Chirps—

Mr. Eugene Corri, the famous referee of the National Sporting Club, in London, gave his views on decisions to a newspaper a week or so ago, and this is what he said:

"One man has been winning handsomely all along the line to the twentieth round, in a specified twenty-round contest. In the last round, let it be argued that the man who has figured so splendidly is suddenly knocked down by a chance blow and counted out. The rules of the National Sporting Club would, in such a case as that, justify a referee in giving the fight to the man who has so conspicuously proved his superiority on points."

Well, just suppose Bat Nelson had done all of his fighting in London. You know Bat was a notorious trailer in most of his fights. He fought Eddie Hanlon in Frisco and for sixteen rounds Eddie slaughtered him. In the nineteenth, however, Bat connected with Eddie's chin and the birds began to sing. Well, that was a twenty round thing. According to Mr. Corri, when half the fight was over and he had run second all the way, Nelson might just as well have thrown up his hands and quit, saying: "I CAN'T WIN. Why go further?"

Jim Jeffries might have done the same thing in his twenty-five-round go with Jim Corbett. At the end of the thirteenth round, when he was cut and bleeding and looked like a sparring partner, he should have quit, because his opponent had all the better of the go. As it turned out, however, he flattened Corbett in the twenty-third round.

That stuff might go in bally old London, but we'll let ours go here.

CORBETT'S COLUMN

This isn't the only era in pugilism when Hebrew fighters have been conspicuous among the top-notchers. All through the years since the fistic game became a major sport, the Jewish race has produced some really great ring warriors.

Daniel Mendoza was the greatest of the Hebrew boxers of the long gone days. Born in England in 1763 he became a ring battler at an early age and showed prowess that was remarkable.

Mendoza was brainy to an extreme, could hit with terrible power and stood up amazingly under punishment.

Year after year he added newer conquests to his list and finally climaxed his achievements by winning the heavyweight championship of the world.

After his retirement from the ring, Mendoza started a boxing school and numbered among his pupils the sons of some of the most aristocratic families in Great Britain.

Mendoza was the most scientific fighter of his time—probably the first ringman that ever used speed, ring trickiness and defensive tactics to aid in victory. All others before the days of Mendoza used brute strength alone.

TOOK ON ALL COMERS.

Sam Elias, known as "Dutch Sam of Petticoat Lane," was another Hebrew whose ring deeds lifted him beyond the common group of fighters.

Lacking much in the skillfulness of Mendoza, he made up for it in striking power and felled innumerable men with his mighty "maulies." Elias also might have become a champion if the chance ever had come to him to battle for top honors. But always his pleas for a chance with the title-holder fell on deaf ears.

Aby Belasco, called "The Leary Israelite," was the first of the family of "Fighting Belascos" to enter the ring. And Aby shed a lustre on the name.

It was said that he feared neither man nor devil, and he proved it in the ring. He took on all men who cared to battle him, and although he was only of normal height and weight he specialized in mixing it with giants.

Probably the best remembered fight of Aby Belasco's career was that against Patrick Halton, a noted North Ireland pugilist. For many months before they were matched there was considerable talk about the battle and racial feeling ran high.

At last, when they signed to mix it to a finish for 50 pounds a side the arguments that ensued among the rival followers precipitated many clashes. Belasco won the battle—after one of the bloodiest of encounters.

BRITTON HEBREW BOXER.

Barney Aaron, "The Star of the East," was probably the first of the lightweight champions. He was a ringman of note more than a century ago, but his stirring deeds still live in the histories of the ring sport. Aaron reached the zenith of his career by whipping Peter Warren.

Isaac Britton, Harry Abrahams, called "Little Puss," and Isaac Pick, known to ring fame as "Ikey the Pig," were three other Jewish fighters of about the same time.

And each won many battles and considerable ring glory. Pick climbed to such stellar heights that he was given a match with Tom Cribb, the champion, but Cribb whipped him.

Among the other great fighters of the Hebrew race who were prominent in England a hundred years or so ago, were:

Baruk Gadzu, called "Cat's Meat," who won ten straight battles and retired undefeated; Manny Ely Belasco of the "Fighting Belascos," Abe de Costa, Angel Hyams and Isaac Monska.

The most remarkable feature about the Jewish fighters of those days is the fact that they insisted upon battling in the ring despite the fact that the synagogue frowned upon it and the prospect for gain in money in that profession was pitifully small.

The love for fistic battle was so strong within them that nothing halted them from following a pugilistic career.

There are a lot of us who are more interested in Beefsteak, at the right price, than the Balkans, at any old price. There are more of us who are more worried about the high cost of living in our own home town than a scrap between a Jap and Chinaman in the Shantung Peninsula.

This country isn't going to the Bow-wows! Just because some Price Pirates are still at large, we shouldn't jump to the conclusion that every merchant whose prices look high to us this year is a Profiteer, or every man who asks for more money, is a Bolshevik.

The tide has turned. The sentiment of the country has changed within a week. The Common Sense of the common people, under intelligent and responsible leadership, will pull us out of this trouble. But we've all got to work and save, and if we don't start we'll never get there.

One pleasant, practical way to start to save, is to buy something you need at a little less than you can afford to pay. If $6, $8 and $10 looks high for a hat that you used to buy for $5—remember that I have your $5 hat for $3.45.

JOHNSTON REGAINS CROWN

Californian Defeats Tilden in Three Hard Sets for Tennis Title

By FRED B. ALEXANDER.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 5.—After a delay of two weeks on account of impossible conditions and rain, the final clash for the 1919 tennis title was staged and the better match player won. William M. Johnston lived up to his reputation as a bull dog fighter, and taking every [illegible] vantage of William T. Tilden, 2d's nervousness (it might be called timidity) to use his great speed, fairly overwhelmed the hitter in three of the best sets the slight Californian ever played.

Qualifying the above it is only fair to say that Tilden was on edge for his match last Tuesday and that the rest of two days [illegible] benefited [illegible] tall Philadelphian. [illegible] be said that [illegible] even an expert [illegible] flaw in Johnston's game [illegible] forehand, accurate [illegible] marvelous low [illegible] well-placed service and [illegible] per cent [illegible] Johnston's exhibition.

On the other hand, lack of confidence was evident [illegible] every shot that Tilden attempted to hit hard whether forehand [illegible] or overhead. Johnston [illegible] but one service game in [illegible] sets and quickly retaliated by taking the next game on Tilden's service and incidentally, the first set.

TILDEN IN DIFFICULTIES.

All the other games served by the champion [illegible] the middle of [illegible] which is [illegible] service and [illegible] just pulled out [illegible] the games [illegible] one chance to break through Johnston's delivery and only just failed. A win of this one set might have just stopped Johnston's streak of wonderful playing but as it was he carried through till the last point was [illegible]. Tilden's game can [illegible] compared to the one [illegible] him.

Lack of [illegible] in the [illegible] whenever he tried to put [illegible]. It can easily [illegible] was nowhere near as [illegible] or as well-played as [illegible] Patterson five-set affair [illegible] when both American and Australian were forced to [illegible].

HOBART WINS VET TITLE.

Three other national championships were decided [illegible] Hobart [illegible] American [illegible] to his credit [illegible] Irishman [illegible] Anderson, 2—6 [illegible] the veteran [illegible] five. Vincent Richards [illegible] H. Chapin, Jr., in straight sets, [illegible] was expected. [illegible] however, played gamely and stubbornly and his improvement over last year was very apparent. This is the second year Richards [illegible] off the junior title.

Anderson [illegible] culty [illegible] in the [illegible] ternation [illegible] tralia [illegible] and [illegible] Johnston [illegible] Tilden [illegible] son [illegible] Patterson will [illegible] angles to get revenge on Johnston as Brookes will [illegible] Tilden.

AMERICAN DERBY TO BE RACED TOMORROW

The small army of bike riders which has been assembling at the Revere cycle track for the last week in an effort to get [illegible] race but found the swimming [illegible] have [illegible] "parked" their [illegible] and submarine [illegible] for a few [illegible] before the season [illegible].

The Derby is a four-cornered event with [illegible] Corry, Madonna and Wiley [illegible]. The distance is [illegible] kilometers, which makes it one of the [illegible] features of the racing season.

In addition to the big race the regular [illegible] and professional events will be run off.

The Suckers' Union.

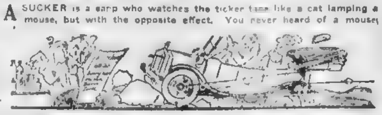

THERE has been a lot of burlap chewing over the fact that the Suckers have threatened to extract their patronage from Wall Street and take it up to Matteawan, where it belongs. A sucker is a bird who gets taken for a long walk and thinks he is riding.

ANY beezark who has invested in Maine [illegible] Asphalt or Subway Seats Preferred, is eligible for membership. [illegible] membership qualifications are as simple as the members. [illegible] takes a five case [illegible] down to Wall Street. If he still has [illegible] he escapes, he [illegible] because he isn't a sucker.

A SUCKER is a sap who watches the ticker tape like a cat lamping a mouse, but with the opposite effect. You never heard of a mouse wrecking a cat. There were suckers long before Chink collar polishers had slanting eyes. Lots of water has flowed under the bridge since the first sucker was taken, but more suckers have marched over it.

The ticker is a hornet's nest with mechanical wasps equipped with Morse stingers. The sapps stake their biscuit money on a margin thinner than twice cooked tea and proceed to work up a poker sweat over a pan cheese bet. The chart of a ticker player's heart looks like the map of an up-State road with caveins caused by bear movements, detours by calls for more margins and roads closed owing to repairs to the bankroll. The poor fish hangs on by his gold plated eye teeth hoping for a rise in the market, but the coroner's verdict shows that one more trick parachute failed to open up.

THE market game is [illegible] than a dinousaur strip. It's as one-sided as a bowl [illegible]. But the suckers keep falling for it and will keep tumbling, for it's sure as corn will pop in Hades.

• • •

ONCE a guy gets the margin needles he is a hype for life. The brokers are so excited over that rumor of the Suckers' Union that one broker put the lighted end of a bankroll in his mouth and another rode downtown in his uptown limousine. If the suckers want to organize and run in schools, the brokers will be able to catch 'em with a net instead of a hook.

• • •

THE Union is almost in working order. Only thing left is to get a good motto that doesn't mean anything, making it plenty appropriate for the suckers. Here's a [illegible]:

Early to bet, late to wise, makes the brokers healthy, wealthy and fat.

The burned child dreads the fire escape.
Take care of the pennies and the brokers will take care of your dollars.

RED SOX AND A'S OPEN 3-GAME SERIES

Philadelphia, Sept. 5.—The Red Sox were scheduled to start their farewell series with the Athletics on Shibe Park today, a single game being listed, the double-header coming tomorrow. For the opening tilt Waite Hoyt looked like the logical selection of Manager Barrow, though the rainy spell has given every one of his boxmen enough rest to enable any one of the firing squad to jump into the breach if needed. "Jing" Johnson was Manager Mack's choice.

Barrow is looking to [illegible] the series and it would surprise [illegible] in this man's town if the Red Sox boss was correct. The Athletics have done nothing [illegible] this season and it must be confessed that their prospects of being much better in 1920 are slim indeed, unless Connie has an unusual run of luck in the youngsters he takes South next Spring.

It is quite possible the Red Sox will be joined by Joe Wilhoit before they leave here. The Western League slugger is just as anxious to get a line on his new team as Manager Barrow is to find out how the former Brave and Giant will show in American League company. If Joe shows up the chances are he will be stuck in the outfield immediately, probably in right, while Hooper will go to centre and Roth to the bench.

CLANCY WOULD HOOK UP WITH GOOD LIGHTWEIGHT

Young Clancy of the West End, who a few years back was a fairly good lightweight, [illegible] Middle West where he has met with marked success. He has won twelve out of fourteen starts there and he is very anxious to meet some of our so-called champs around New England. To Suit the Taste —Wine or Beer

Of course there isn't such a thing any more—we're all drinking water. But it matters not whether your taste is expensive or inexpensive, if it is a cap you are after it is in the Delano Shops. There is a brand new Knox cap, quite the town's smartest creation at five dollars. Then at three-fifty there is an exceptional selection in homespuns and Terrycloth. They're made in one piece and eight-quarter tops, and the tones are well selected. Others as low as two dollars. One has an "air" in a Delano cap.

How to Play Baseball

THIS is the ninetieth of a series of 100 articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In this lesson Mr. Fullerton tells how to execute double plays. These articles will be a feature of the American's sport pages. Don't miss them.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Probably more games are lost through mixups between players as to which shall attempt the play than almost any other one thing. This is especially true of close games in which the pitching is "air tight," and in which, naturally, the players are keyed to higher and higher tension as play progresses.

Outfielders hesitate as to which shall try for a ball, pitchers and second basemen continually clash, hesitate and lose precious fractions of seconds before deciding which shall cover first base when the first baseman rushes forward to field a bunted ball.

Third basemen, shortstops and pitchers frequently blunder and sometimes collide in trying for bunts or for topped bounders, when the ball rolls slowly.

To avoid such mistakes should

THE OTHER OUTFIELDER COACHES HIM

be the first understanding after chance to make the play then should call, "Take it."

In the outfield, and on high foul flies especially, the chances of a collision are great unless that [illegible] rule is adhered to, and a [illegible] between two players running at top speed looking upward and watching a ball is dangerous and sometimes fatal. The thing most to be avoided, however, is hesitation. This hesitation most frequently is caused by lack of understanding between players and by fear of a collision.

No team can play good team ball unless each player has faith in the others and feels certain that each will obey the captain's order and respect the claim to the play.

In the outfield, after a fielder has claimed a catch, the other [illegible] continue to coach him by word while [illegible]. The first [illegible] the Spring should be that one man, preferably the captain, shall call the name of the man who is to make the effort clearly and that no other player shall call out excepting the one making the effort. He should make his claim to a play instantly and go through with it without regard to any other player.

The field captain should cry [illegible] out, "I [illegible]." The player who also may have a [illegible] by telling him the location of the ball by shouting "Keep going" or "You're under it."

Often this system is of great value to the player working in a sunny field. [illegible] of the ball may be hampered by the glare of the sun, and a word of direction [illegible] enable him to locate it correctly.

A Brother of Nelson

THE GRAY HAIR

With a Deeply Interesting Plot

The Action So Far

John Hastings, multi-millionaire and captain of industry, has employed Rob[illegible] A[illegible], a young lawyer, to do some work for him. Allaire gains admittance to the house and reveals himself as a member of "The Society for the Redistribution of Superfluous Wealth." He threatens Hastings, who attempts to summon aid. The visitor shoots him dead and escapes. Arrested later, Allaire proves a perfect alibi. Police Commissioner Blake is forced to believe the mistake is due to a case of mistaken identity. Meanwhile three other m[illegible]onaires rush to his office on hearing of Hastings' death and demand protection.

"Nerve [illegible] Coleman. "Oh, let me talk to him. Tell him that I'll give him" — His utterance was drowned in the frightened cries of the others. They would have torn the phone from Blake's hand but that he kicked a chair in their path and hindered them momentarily. He spoke to the unknown.

"Look here," he said. "You'd better come down to headquarters and have a talk with me. You've just heard your friends trying to tell you they agree to your terms. Come down here, and let's settle this affair in a friendly fashion."

Too Wary to Be Caught

He thought he was talking to a maniac and still he fought for time. His three visitors ceased their clamor and struggle to be first to take the phone from him, waiting for the answer. And straining their ears they could faintly hear the sneering laugh that began the reply.

"You think I'm crazy, eh? A crank? So did John Hastings, and he's dead!"

"But you aren't giving these men a square deal!" cried the commissioner. "If they're willing to settle——"

But the unknown could not be guiled.

"[illegible] have my message. Good-by."

There was a click and he had rung off. Blake joggled the receiver. Frantically he cried into the mouthpiece.

"What was that number I talked to? Where is it? Where is it?"

The police operator on the floor below answered.

"The Talley Arms, sir. Redmond got the number a minute ago. He got the Tenderloin station, sir, and also the operator at the hotel. The operator'll try to hold him till the police arrive, sir."

Blake hung up. There was nothing he could do now. He turned to his three guests, and surveyed them contemptuously.

"Quit your sniveling at once," he ordered. "I'll have that man right down here in twenty minutes. He was talking from a hotel only three blocks from the Tenderloin station. The operator was warned on another wire, and he'll hold him till my men get there. The nerve of him! Well, nerve and gall have put more men in the chair than sleuth-work. We'll land him!"

The Phone Bell Rings

This teeth clicked on the last word, and he looked so venomous that his three visitors forgot their fears of the unknown in their present fear of Blake. The police commissioner was a desperate man this morning, the obsequious courtesy which their wealth ordinarily commanded for them was absent from his manner.

He might even, unless they were careful, make good his threat of clapping them into cells, and while they knew such a punishment could not last long, it was unpleasant prospect. Nervously they waited for five minutes that seemed as long as hours. Then the telephone bell rang.

"Yes; this is the commissioner," said Blake.

"This is Lieutenant Hagan, sir. We're at the Tally Arms——"

"Have you got the man that was 'phoning to me from there?"

"No, sir," said the lieutenant, "he made his getaway. The phone operator here tried to hold him, but he got knocked out cold. We hurried as quick as——"

The commissioner exploded.

"I've a mind to break you for this, Hagan! Had every chance in the world—does the operator know the man?"

"No, sir, but he's given us a good description, and——"

"Bring him down here—at once! Understand! If you aren't here in ten minutes——"

"Coming, sir," said the lieutenant.

"Well, did they [illegible] him?" asked Coleman.

"No, but we'll have his description, and——"

A Frightened Millionaire

"And he's wand[illegible] ready [illegible] our murders [illegible] Mr. Commissioner, I [illegible] to the Mayor, [illegible] the Governor [illegible]."

[illegible] Blake strode over to him, grabbed his shoulder, and shook him.

"Look here, Mr. Deewald. You be careful. You show me some respect in my own office, or—look here. You people want protection, eh? Well, where are you safer than right here in my office? Go over there and sit down, all three of you. I've got enough to worry me without [illegible]. Sit down."

They sat down on a bench at one side of the room. Blake pressed the button on his desk, and Redmond answered.

"Sorry, sir," said the policeman, "but I hustled."

"You did very well, Redmond," said the commissioner. "I hardly thought the man was fool enough to be trapped that way. I want every plain clothes man on duty here to be ready to receive instructions from me in twenty minutes. Tell them."

"Yes, sir." And Redmond saluted and left the office.

The commissioner sat down at his desk and, forgetful of his visitors, bowed his head in his hands. He had only been in office six months. During that time he had inaugurated many changes in the department.

He had received encomiums from the press because of the manner of his taking hold of the department. And now, when success loomed large and bright before him, a murder had been committed that had amazed the world, and the murderer had left absolutely no clew save the resemblance to Allaire, which had resulted in the lawyer's futile arrest and quick discharge.

The department was coping with a criminal genius. For the [illegible] who had daringly talked with the commissioner over the phone must be the murderer. A [illegible] excitement-seeking crank could not have known from uptown in the Talley Arms that Deewald, Coleman and Warrener were at the moment in the commissioner's office.

Another Mix-up

But the operator from the Talley Arms would describe him. Blake would turn every man on the force upon the murderer's trail. No man could hide away from the whole force; no man.

The opening door brought his head from his arms. Lieutenant Hagan entered.

"I have the operator here, sir."

Womanly Wit

A young lady whose dramatic ability was greater than her personal attractions called on a popular manager with the view of obtaining a part. The manager chatted about the value of good looks to a woman, ending up with "Beauty is to a woman what brains are to a man." "There's only one thing more valuable to a man than brains," said the young lady. "What's that?" asked the manager. "Tact!" was the reply.

CHAPTER L

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

WALTER JEFFERSON'S statement that the darkest letter in a monogram stands for the last name might or might not be true. Helen Goddard accepted it as truth.

[illegible] about this fellow.

Nothing [illegible] she admitted. "But from the first moment I met him I was taken by his looks. I knew he was a gentleman. I have a lot of [illegible] I saw that he was far above the average man. I think that [illegible] too, although she will not confess it. Nobody could be with him for five minutes and not see that he is a thoroughbred. What's the matter?"

For a disagreeable [illegible] had come to the [illegible]. He was a vain man. [illegible] unpleasant to [illegible] praised [illegible] subject of [illegible] praises had been, [illegible]

Walter Jefferson had admired [illegible] for many months.

He had met her a year ago and had then learned that she was the only child of a rich widower. That she was [illegible] charming made her [illegible] eyes. He had tried in vain to win her good graces.

He wanted to [illegible] Smith was an impostor. He [illegible] himself that he had always [illegible]

"What [illegible]" Helen repeated [illegible] her question. "What [illegible] that?"

His Point of View

I was amused [illegible] how easily you have been [illegible] by this fellow. [illegible] very first I have [illegible] my eye on him [illegible] something warned me that he was sailing under false colors.

Helen attempted to champion Smith. "I do not [illegible] colors as you call [illegible] seem false. I do not believe he wears them to [illegible] anything [illegible]ful."

[illegible]

Jefferson [illegible] Miss Helen that [illegible] there was nothing [illegible] haps life [illegible]

"And I do not believe there is!" Helen asserted. "Of course it is possible that he [illegible] made some mistake [illegible] been a drinking man or something of that sort, but he has a right to make a fresh start now."

The [illegible] moved by her [illegible]

"All I know is [illegible] that this so-called chauffeur [illegible] big, strong fellow who was [illegible] service and then got out in the way best known to himself."

"In the service!" Helen gasped. "I did not know that."

"But I did," Jefferson declared.

Another Evil Hint

"That is surely to his credit," Helen reasoned.

"Not unless he got out honorably," the man reminded her. "There are such things as deserters, you know. I saw this man in Baltimore several years ago—and under another name."

"It is not a crime to use a different name from your own," the girl pleaded.

"One does not drop one's own name unless one has done something to disgrace it," Jefferson [illegible] sententiously. "But all this talk gets us nowhere. For myself I can think of more agreeable topics of conversation than this [illegible] chauffeur. If you will excuse me I will go over and chat with our hostess for a little while."

Helen Goddard was a coquette and a sentimentalist, but she had a kind heart. She had been discussing Smith with Jefferson because the chauffeur was uppermost in her mind. That she had perhaps started an investigation that might get Smith into trouble startled her.

She decided to take Mrs. Dufffield into her confidence. To this end she drew that lady aside later in the evening.

"Do you know," she said, "I am worried about something. Walter Jefferson thinks that Smith's name is not Smith. He is determined to rake up his past. I am afraid he will speak to Mr. Leighton about it. Won't you warn your brother not to believe any rumor against his chauffeur?"

The widow turned pale. "Smith is going under an assumed name?" she whispered. "Oh, my dear, how awful!"

"Awful?" the girl echoed. "I don't see why."

"Because—don't you think it looks strange that we should learn this just now. I mean it is a coincidence that he should be here under an assumed name, and that the pendant should disappear — and everything! There may be some connection between the two, you know. It seems very significant to me, my dear."

Income Tax Does Not Beget Lack of Thrift

Mr. Otto H. Kahn, one of the leading bankers of America, denounces the income tax upon the ground that it may promote a lack of thrift.

Mr. Kahn gives us the general aphorism that the most important by-product of taxation is the promotion of thrift. That is entirely true. But, unfortunately, the kind of taxes which those who are best able to bear taxes have always imposed is the very tax which not only fails to promote thrift, but insures the lack of thrift, and the persistence of this kind of unjust taxation has actually changed the character of whole nations. For example, the brutal tax which the English absentee landlords imposed upon the Irish for generations made the Irish tenant pay more taxes in proportion as he increased the value of his land and as he improved his home and absolutely destroyed thrift among the Irish peasants. The results of his thrift added to the burdens of his taxes.

Now, the income tax is quite a different tax. It is not imposed upon a man's industry or upon his thrift. It is not imposed upon production—indeed, it stimulates production. It stimulates a man to expand his business; to spend less in luxury and more in business; to have less automobiles for private use and more trucks for business; to have less personal servants in his household and more employes in his business. Under the income tax he is not taxed upon the amount of money which he spends in his business, but only upon the amount of money that he takes out of his business for his own private, personal use and that of his family. And, since the instinct to cheat the government is so strong among us all, the disposition of business men, when they realize that they must turn over to the government a large amount of their profits under the income tax, is to spend that money in expanding their business, hiring more men, experimenting and in doing all kinds of things that makes business better and that gives us prosperity. As we have said, it tends to reduce the number of private automobiles and to increase the number of business automobiles; to decrease the number of private yachts and to increase the number of commercial ships; to decrease the number of servants who are withdrawn from the production of goods for all the people in order to cater to the vanity and luxury of the few.

The income tax is the ONLY tax which has yet been devised that cannot be shifted to the shoulders of the poor, and an important by-product of that tax which was not anticipated by economists is the power of it to make the wheels of business turn faster.

Mr. Kahn charges against the income tax the high cost of living and the high rents.

As to the high cost of living, the charge is true only in form, but not in reality. Those high prices which merely mean a decline in the value of the dollar do not make REAL high cost of living; neither do high prices attendant upon great expansion of business, great national prosperity and rapid speeding up of the wheels of industry. We are inconceivably better off in a period of high prices and general prosperity than in a period of low prices and no prosperity. Everybody knows that this is true. It is wasting time to state the fact.

Nor is Mr. Kahn's charge that the income tax is responsible for high rents any more true so far as the increase of rents is a legitimate attendant upon our prosperous condition. The really evil part of the increase of our rents has nothing whatever to do with our income tax. It is due to the scarcity of buildings, and that scarcity has nothing to do with the income tax. It results from our conditions. The government required us practically to cease building operations during the war in order that labor and material might be devoted to the production of war supplies and the yielding of men for the army. But our population kept on increasing, the nation has grown more and more prosperous, industry has expanded, commerce has increased and so we are obliged to do a very much greater business with a reduced number of buildings in which to house it and ourselves. This has given the owners of real estate a chance to extort monopoly values for their prosperity.

The failure to build after the armistice is not due, as Mr. Kahn says, to the income tax or to the high prices, but is due to the uncertainty as to the future of the present high prices. The man who is going to invest his money in buildings at the present high prices wants to know that those high prices are going to stay, and while he fears that the prices may go down he is afraid to build. Only let it be understood that the high prices have come to stay and building will start and will be stimulated rather than retarded by the continuance of the income tax.

We are not at all surprised that gentlemen who are obliged to pay great income taxes because their incomes are so great find it burdensome, not only because their tax is large, but because it is a new thing for them to be obliged to pay their share towards the expense of the government and to be unable to pass it on down with a smile and wink upon the shoulders of the poor, as they have been able to pass down every other kind of taxes. And, of course, as the day approaches for the repassing of the income tax law, we shall hear with greater regularity and with increasing volume protests by income tax payers against the income tax, and those protests will be solemnly grounded upon alleged grave economic, social and political evils which those who are compelled to pay the income tax will find in this tax.

But there is one thing about the American people, they do not let go a good thing when they have found it—however slow they may be in finding it.

DON'T BE A GLOOM AFTER THE DAY'S WORK

Old man, are you not causing your family a lot of unnecessary worry by your conduct when you come home from work?

Do you not fall into your chair and state that you feel that you must give up your place because the work is too hard and you cannot hold your job much longer?

Now, why alarm your family by such complaints?

You know that you are far from a dead one.

Plenty of vitality you have, and you can think clearly; and for a fact, you are interested in what you are doing.

Then why keep harping on your prospects of becoming useless in the near future?

Buck up and be a husband and father to be proud of.

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—Please say something to mothers-in-law who come to visit you for months and watch closely lest you have a bit of a honeymoon. It's awful.

A DISCOURAGED BRIDE.

Dear K. C. B.—I am a discharged soldier and am married and have three children, and I am living with my wife's people. Now, my mother-in-law is a squarehead and a big bonehead, and every time I am in the parlor reading she always starts in chewing the rag. Maybe if you put what you think best in your column it might help me out, because she reads it every evening. And hustle that six months' pay up, so I can start a home of my own.

A DISTRACTED HUSBAND.

THERE THEY are.
AND BOTH of the letters.
WERE IN the same mail.
AND THE first complains.
THAT HER mother-in-law.
IS IN her home.
AND THE second complains.
THAT HE'S in the home.
OF HIS mother-in-law.
AND HERE am I.
WITH BOTH on my hands.
AND AN excellent chance.
OF GETTING in bad.
WITH ALL mothers-in-law.
AND DISCOURAGED brides.
AND DISTRACTED husbands.
AND OF course it's true.
THAT I might have avoided.
AN UNPLEASANT task.
BY DROPPING the letters.
DOWN INTO the depths.
OF THE yawning basket.
AT THE side of my desk.
AND I tried to do that.
BUT THE voice of the bride.
WITH ITS plaintive appeal.
CAME UP to me.
AND I rescued her.
FROM THE scraps of things.
THAT THE basket holds.
AND WENT down again.
AND RESCUED the soldier.
AND FLATTENED them out.
WHERE I'D crumpled them up.
AND LAID them down.
ON THE side of my desk.
AND COPIED them.
AND THERE they are.
AS I said before.
IN THE very first line.
AND HERE am I.
AND I'M frightened stiff.
LEST I'LL say some word.
THAT'LL MAKE them all sore.
AND, ANYWAY.
IT ISN'T fair.
THEY SHOULD write to me.
FOR I don't know anything.
ABOUT MOTHERS-IN-LAW.
I NEVER had any.
I MARRIED an orphan.
AND I was an orphan.
AND ALL of the trouble.
THAT WE'VE ever had.
WE'VE MADE it ourselves.
BUT I will say this.
THAT IN my judgment.
THE MOTHER-IN-LAW.
OF THE discouraged bride.
AND THE son-in-law.
OF THE boneheaded woman.
OUGHT BOTH to pack up.
AND BEAT it away.

I THANK you.

Meat Packers' Protest

ARMOUR & COMPANY,
Chicago.

Editor Boston American:

Whose concern is it that Congress is considering legislation that will restrict the meat packers from competing in the general food held and put them under complete domination of some government official?

Of course, our concern is apparent: it hardly need be said that we will protest emphatically against such legislation. We believe that others, too, will protest, because, under the Moses amendment to the Kenyon bill, the act becomes applicable to all interstate business, which means that the baneful effects of this proposed legislation will not be confined to the packing industry. If need be, we will make this fight alone, but we are writing to record this thought:

This proposed legislation affects every kind of business because it sets a precedent inimical to enterprise in all fields. It puts business under the heel of bureaucracy, and the logical result would be to return to the medieval practice of craft and guild domination, which kept initiative in a strait-jacket.

When it comes to pass that a business can exist only by leave of some official holding temporary office and not necessarily conversant with the business involved, then industrial and commercial progress in this country will cease.

If the wholesale grocer can, by law, eliminate competition at the hands of the meat packers, as is the intent of pending legislation, then there is no logical reason why the tailor could not in a similar way stop the sale of clothes at department stores; or why automobile distributors could not prevent wholesale grocers from handling accessories; or why cigar stores could not stop the sale of tobacco by druggists; or, in your own case, why the fiction magazines should not make it illegal for newspapers to print serials.

It will be a terrible blow to American business when Congress begins deciding for the firm or individual what legitimate activity he may or may not engage in.

Of similiar significance is the proposal to take away from the meat packers their refrigerator cars—not because of any misuse of them, but simply because all firms do not operate their own. It is as though a law were passed which compelled you, the owner of a modern press, to make it common property, because some one desired to compete with you for business, but was not possessed of proper mechanical equipment.

We do not aver that such foolish laws will ever be enacted, but they are no more foolish or unjust than the proposed law to license packers, limit their activities and take away from them that portion of their equipment which others would like to use.

We have written you in belief that you, as a moulder of public opinion, should be fully alive to the nature of the legislation being considered by Congress. We will welcome the aid of men who believe as we believe—that such legislation is vicious, improper, and dangerous to the future of this nation.

J. OGDEN ARMOUR.

Sunday Laws.

Editor Boston American:

I read your editorial on Sunday laws recently. You say: "Some test of public opinion on this question ought to be made." I propose that you open your columns for a correspondence on this subject. The question should be stated definitely and the editor should have the privilege of throwing in the waste basket the letters that are not to the point. For instance, there should be no quotation from the Bible. We know the Bible sanctions punishment for Sabbath breaking, also for witchcraft. No argument needs to be made in favor of rest on Sunday. I believe in rest seven days in the week. We admit rest is good, the more the better, and Sunday rest is a religious duty of believers in the Jewish Bible. The question should be put, as follows: "What good or bad results, morally, spiritually and physically, can come from Sunday laws in New England in 1919 A. D., not in Palestine 1919 B. C.?" I insist on the date and the place, so that some one may not hand in a thesis of a thousand words, showing the necessity of Sunday rest in the wilderness by the Israelites, who had nothing else to do but to milk their cows and their goats six days a week. The consensus of opinion seems to be that as far as the New England youth is concerned, the law is morally and physically bad. Morally bad because brooding and lonesome at home, the boy will go astray into sin and become physically bad because his body will be stunted. And my opinion is that it is spiritually bad because a spirit in bondage cannot be healthy.

SUN'S GREAT MACHINE GUNS ARE EXPLAINED

By Garrett P. Serviss

WHENEVER a magnetic storm occurs it is almost certain that the sun is at the bottom of the disturbance. "Old Sol" has been too often detected behaving in a suspicious manner on such occasions to leave much doubt in the minds of astronomers that he is the mischief maker. The only real question is: Just how does he do it?

A widely accepted view is that of Maunder, which assumes that streams or shafts of electro-magnetic energy, in some form, go out from certain regions on the solar surface, probably within the limits of the spot-belts, and rotate like spokes with the turning of the sun on its axis. In these shafts the radiant energy is transmitted with a speed comparable with that of light, and where they strike the earth they give rise to a magnetic storm.

The sun might be compared to a globe-shaped caisson-battery, rotating on a horizontal axis, with guns projecting around its central belt, and pouring streams of projectiles, as continuous as shafts of water from fire-hose, out into the space through which the planets have to travel in their orbits. The streams swing round with the sun's rotation, and that is what gives a peculiarly sinister aspect to this strange bombardment.

4,533 Miles an Hour

Let us look at this a little. The diameter of the sun is about 866,000 miles. Its radius is therefore 433,000 miles and its circumference about 2,720,000 miles. Its rate of rotation on its axis (it turns in the same direction as the earth), is such that it makes one turn in about 25 days, or 600 hours. Hence, any point on its surface advances at a speed of 4,533 miles per hour. That, then, is the speed with which the shafts of electric energy swing round at the surface of the sun.

Or we may say that the pointing of any one of these tremendous solar guns, pouring out an unceasing stream of projectiles, is shifted at the rate of 4,533 miles per hour, or about 75½ miles per minute. But this is at the sun's surface. At the distance of the earth, which is 93,000,000 miles from the sun, the space swept over in one minute by the projectile shaft becomes about 16,200 miles, so that in half a minute it would sweep across the entire diameter of the earth.

Now, curiously enough, some recent studies of magnetic storms seem to show that they do begin at one edge of that side of the earth which happens at the time to face the sun, about half a minute before they are felt at the opposite edge.

Many Do Not Strike Earth

The swinging shaft from the sun, moving spoke-wise, first strikes the earth at the edge of its western, or afternoon, side and sweeps in 30 seconds across its face to the edge of its eastern, or morning, side.

This living in the presence, or in the sphere of influence, or of bombardment, of so dispensive a centre of mighty energies as the sun has its disadvantages, especially for nervously-sensitive people, for, while the technical definition of a magnetic storm refers only to disturbances of the magnetic needle, and of electro-magnetic apparatus, yet, as millions are convinced by personal experience, there is some strange element, probably electric, in the weather changes that is not accounted for by meteorological science, but which manifests its capricious powers for mischief in exceedingly convincing twinges.

FIRM BELIEVER IN MARRIAGE FOR LOVE.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, herself disappointed in love, and today awaiting the divorce decree which will free her from her husband, is nevertheless a firm believer in marriage for love. Notwithstanding her own experience she is trying for the third time within a year to bring other couples to the happiness which she missed.

An especially interesting story in next Sunday's Advertiser deals with Mrs. Vanderbilt's romance, and the reasons why she believes that love alone, not money or family, should be the deciding factor in modern marriage. In next

SCHOOLGIRL LOVE TURNS OUT TO BE TRAGEDY

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

SHE was married when a mere girl in her second year at high school.

Her husband, a harum-scarum lad little older than herself, deserted her almost immediately. She fell into ill-health, and since her family no longer recognized her or would have anything to do with her, and since she had neither money nor friends, the only refuge open to her was the public hospital of a neighboring city.

For weeks she was desperately ill, and during that time her baby died from lack of nourishment and the care which under other circumstances she would have given it.

When one finally left the institution she found herself facing the world alone and penniless, still weak and broken from the sorrow and suffering through which she had passed.

She was a country girl, utterly unsophisticated in the ways of the world, and as the daughter of well-to-do parents had never been obliged to work and so was without any sort of training or vocation. A weaker spirit would have surrendered and gone down before the stark hopelessness of the future.

Began New Career

But she pluckily gathered the shreds and fragments of her life together, and started in to make a new career.

"After my discharge from the hospital," she writes me, "I secured a position as a servant and worked for four months in order to secure enough money to repay the burial expenses of my baby and to cover my railway fare to another city where I was absolutely unknown.

"There, after various vicissitudes, I finally obtained the chance to enter a large and well-known hospital as a probationer, and with hard study eventually completed the course and was graduated as a trained nurse.

"About this time I received the report of my husband's death in an automobile accident, and since there was no longer any obstacle in the way I accepted the attentions and ultimately married a very fine young man with whom I had become acquainted.

There were no secrets between us; I told him frankly and fully my whole history, and he was big enough to overlook my follies and mistakes and take me as I was.

You can imagine my consternation and despair, therefore, when I tell you that about three months ago while engaged in Red Cross work at a base hospital I was assigned to duty one night in a ward filled with returned soldiers, and upon the first chart that I examined I found the name of my former husband.

"Hoping against hope that there might be some mistake, I made inquiries regarding the identity of the man, only to become more and more convinced that it must be he. Then at last summoning all my courage, I stole over and looked down at him. There could be longer be any question or doubt. It was the husband I had married, in my girlhood.

"Every since my days have been a dream of horror. My heart is broken. I dare not tell my husband, and I have no one else to whom I can turn. I do not know what to do. I can expect no relief or assistance from my people, I am sure. I have never heard from them since I left home, and I have been told that my name is never mentioned by them. They are very religious and they will never forgive me for having, as they consider, brought disgrace upon them.

Melodrama in Real Life

"Why should I be so bitterly condemned? Why must I be so heavily punished? I have always tried to help every human being in my power, spending freely of both my time and money; but now when I need help myself there seems no one to whom I can appeal."

And there is a bit of real life which if I were to put it in a novel would be sharply criticised as melodramatic and unconvincing.

I would be accused of stretching the long arm of coincidence to an unjustifiable limit.

I am told that if the facts are as she states them, the absence and silence of her first husband for over seven years, even without the report of the automobile accident which came to her, gives a reasonable presumption of his death and automatically releases her from any tie which bound her to him.
